Little Frogs Frolic in Big Playground Pond

Hampton Park was one of 15 Saanich playgrounds opened yesterday, the Kinsmen-donated wading pool centre of attraction, with 75 in the water at one time.

Oak Bay Votes Wet But Pubs Rejected

Three New Outlets Passed In Small Turnout at Polls

Oak Bay voters have approved the licensing of dining rooms, clubs and cabarets, and cocktail bars; but have rejected beer parlors.

Approximately 37 per cent of 8,593 registered voters cast ballots yesterday. The unofficial returns from the 32 polls are as follows:

Beer parlors, 737 yes, 2,355 no, 129 rejects, a 23.5 per cent vote in favor;

Dining room licenses, 1809 yes, 1,466 no, 124 rejects, a 62 per cent vote in favor;

Dining lounges (cabarets and clubs), 1,725 yes, 1,313 no, 181 rejects, a 56.7 per cent vote in favor;

Cocktail bars, 1,737 yes, 1,289 no, 160 rejects, a 57.4 per cent vote in favor.

All issues required a 55 per cent majority to pass.

Applications for dining room licenses are expected from the Oak Bay Beach Hotel and the Old Charming Inn. The Tango Room may qualify for a cabaret license.

NO CAMPAIGN

There was no "wet" versus "dry" campaign.

Voting was extremely light until noon, by which time only about 500 persons had voted.

Returning officer C. Rice-Jones received many reports of persons not registered for the vote.

A "dead" man came to life for the vote, he reported. The man found his name wasn't on the list. A check with the registrar found that the man's name had been removed on notification from the vital statistics department that he had died at Vancouver in March.

After a thorough check and a delay the "dead" man received a ballot.

VOTE REMOTE

Possibility of a plebiscite on four types of liquor outlets in Esquimalt grew more remote last night when the municipal council failed to discuss the matter.

The council has only one more meeting scheduled before the liquor board starts considering Esquimalt applications August 4, and there are no signs of a request for a vote.

Visitor Charms Bonn

BONN, Germany (AP) — Princess Margaret charmed the German people Monday during a precedent-breaking Royal visit that inaugurated a new era of German-British relations.

The petite sister of Queen Elizabeth paid the first official call by a member of the Royal Family on a German head of state since 1912.

An estimated 15,000 Germans turned out to cheer the 23-year-old princess as she drove through the streets of the small West German capital.

"Schau, wie schoen,"—look, how beautiful—the German crowds exclaimed when they saw the princess.

Victoria Likely To Join Others

United-Front Effort Grows Against Bus-Fare Rise Bid

Victoria probably will join Vancouver and other municipalities affected in a united effort to block the B.C. Electric Company's application for transit fare increases which, in this city and district, would amount to approximately 30 per cent.

Following Vancouver city council's unanimous vote last night in opposition to increased fares, Victoria council members, who also voted against the BCE application, supported the Mainland city in a move toward a "united front."

Aldermen Macmillan, Mrs. Margaret Christie, Willard Mooney and Brent Murdoch, who voted last Thursday to put council on record as being opposed to the application, said last night Victoria should join other municipalities to fight the BCE application before the Public Utilities Commission.

Mayor Claude Harrison was the fifth member of council opposing the application.

Aldermen believe he would favor the city's support of opposition to the application. But he himself could not be reached for comment.

Ald. Macmillan said he would be prepared to see the city join a united front even if it meant spending an unlimited amount of money on examination of company records.

"I consider it would be far more valuable than anything we could do ourselves," he said.

Mrs. Christie said a united opposition effort would have most effect.

"We should take our place in a united stand against the company application," said Ald. Mooney.

Ald. Murdoch said he was definitely opposed to any increase and said he would favor a united front.

Action to freeze B.C. Electric Company transit fares in Victoria, Vancouver and other points of operation, will be urged upon Premier W. A. C. Bennett and the Public Utilities Commission.

The CCF provincial executive called for this action during the week end, and at the same time demanded an independent analysis "of the entire B.C. Electric structure with a view to obtaining authentic information on the capital basis, efficiency and policies of the company."

ABOUT-FACE

Frank Snowsell, second vice-president of the CCF in B.C. and a former MLA, said here last night his executive's opposition was due partly to the BCE's "about-face" when it contends transportation revenues should be more in line with operating costs.

His executive felt this attitude opposed directly the company's previous argument when it had sought power and light rate increases, maintaining all its operations should be considered on "a unified basis."

The CCF, while opposing the BCE fare demands, called for state ownership of all public utilities.

ALL-OUT FIGHT

Vancouver's council pledged an "all-out" fight when the BCE application comes before the PUC.

Mayor Fred Hume and Ald. Donald McTaggart will investigate the possibility of organizing the "united front" of all municipalities affected by the fare-boost plan.

Esquimalt, Saanich

Two Areas Add To Opposition

Esquimalt and Saanich councils joined the array in opposition to increased BCE transit fares here last night.

Esquimalt even considered refusing to discuss the application with BCE officials. Eventually it agreed to a meeting, but opposed both the proposed fare increase and reduced service. Its recommendation will be sent to the Public Utilities Commission.

Saanich council indicated opposition, but passed no motion pending a meeting of its transportation committee and BCE officials. Suggested meeting date is July 28.

In Esquimalt, Clrs. G. K. Sammon, James Bryant and J. E. Carey urged council to go on record against both proposals.

NOT ABLE TO SAY

Reeve A. C. Wurtele said council was not able to say if the increase was "reasonable to cover increased costs," and suggested the matter be sent to the PUC for further information.

Clr. Carey said "it's a fallacy to appear before the PUC."

Clr. Sammon said opposition "is the only way we can voice an objection on behalf of the people who elected us."

Council at first opposed a meeting with transit officials to get details of proposed reduced service, but later agreed when Clr. Sammon pointed out, "we can object to existing service while we're at it." The reeve will arrange the meeting.

Some members of Saanich council agreed when Clr. L. H. Passmore said he thought the 4.78 per cent the B.C. Electric records as over-all profit on all operations was "not so bad."

"We all know that the buses don't pack enough people to make money, but as a public utility company it has to absorb some of the losses of transportation," he asserted.

He predicted that as soon as the new fares go in force people will flock to the used-car lots to buy cars and the bus lines will suffer consequently.

Clr. R. Fleming agreed and added that even if the company did get the fare boost, he didn't think the cost of lighting, which he claimed subsidized the bus operations, would drop.

"They have taken on all the public utilities because they appear to want them," he added.

Clr. Passmore pointed out it was no use Saanich considering taking over bus transport. "Buying transportation alone is no good," he said. "You must have the power and light that goes with it. It is no use buying the losses without the profits."

Atop 'Un-Climbed' Peak

Reports that an alpine party would make an assault shortly on "un-climbed" Mount Colonel Foster . . . named for Major-General W. W. Foster, noted B.C. mountaineer . . . brought the evidence pictured here that the mountain is not among this country's unscaled peaks. "In 1936 or 37," A. G. Sloclomb of the B.C. civil service, told the Colonist, "while on a topographical survey, a friend and I reached the summit. We took one another's picture. I don't want to spoil the fun for the climbers." But like Kilroy, he was there first.

No Change on Geneva

Dulles En Route To Paris Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles left by plane for Paris Monday night in a surprise move which he said demonstrates "the deep concern" he feels over developments in Indo-China and Europe.

Dulles expressed hope that conferences scheduled with French Premier Mendes-France and British Foreign Secretary Eden today would assure "coordinated action" by the three governments.

The U.S. secretary emphasized that his flying visit to Paris in no way means he has changed his previous decision to stay away from the Geneva Far East peace conference, where Indo-China truce talks are nearing a showdown stage.

"The United States itself is not a belligerent in Indo-China," he said. "It is not clear that the interests which we hold in common with France and Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia will necessarily be best served by identical action in all respects.

"Therefore, my trip to Paris is without prejudice to the position previously expressed that neither I nor Undersecretary Walter Bedell Smth have at the present time any plans for going to Geneva where the United States is presently maintaining contacts with developments through ambassador to Czechoslovakia Alexis Johnson and his associates."

Studio Ban Upheld

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — A superior court judge Monday upheld an agreement among motion picture studios not to hire persons who refused to testify about Communist activities before congressional committees.

Judge Ellsworth Meyer turned down a $51,000,000 suit brought by 23 actors, actresses and writers on grounds their civil rights were violated when the studios declined to hire them.

Eighteen of the plaintiffs had refused to answer questions posed by un-American activities committee members. The rest, named by committee witnesses as Communists, refused to testify at all.

The plaintiffs included actresses Gale Sondergaard and Anne Revere, actor Howard Da Silva and writers Paul Jarrico, Michael Wilson and Waldo Salt.

Comox Lancaster Crashes, Burns

An RCAF Comox-based Lancaster bomber crashed and burned near Cedar Rapids, Iowa, attempting a landing at municipal airport on Monday.

The crew of four escaped serious injury.

The pilot, Flt. Lieut. Jack Brindle suffered head and face lacerations. His three crew members were less painfully hurt.

Fire which broke out in one of the four engines of the big craft was quenched. The plane was otherwise extensively damaged.

The plane was at Cedar Rapids for installation and testing of new radar equipment.

Mayor Says Crofton To Get Pulp Mill

DUNCAN — The proposed pulp mill in the Cowichan district will be built at Crofton, Mayor J. C. Wragg told council last night.

The mayor said he had expected the announcement to be made public yesterday. He also stated the new power line from the Mainland to Vancouver Island would be between Crofton and Maple Bay so it could best serve the new mill.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett, at a public meeting here recently announced that a pulp mill would be built in the district but said he did not know the exact location.

Workers Suggest Terms

Saanich municipal employees last night offered to settle their wage dispute with the municipality for a 3-per-cent increase, with a four-cent-an-hour minimum raise, with the provision that there be a reclassification of office employees.

Council neither accepted nor rejected the proposal, but named Reeve Joseph Casey, Clr. George Austin and Clr. S. W. Brock to meet the employees to discuss the plan.

Billions on Highways Urged by Eisenhower

BOLTON LANDING, N.Y. (AP)—President Eisenhower Monday night proposed that the United States spend billions more on highway construction to meet defense needs of atomic war and of a possible population of 200,000,000 by 1970.

Vice-President Nixon outlined Eisenhower's plan in a prepared address, using the president's notes. Eisenhower canceled a personal appearance at the annual conference of governors because of the death of a sister-in-law, Mrs. Milton Eisenhower.

Through Nixon, the president called for a federal-state alliance in a "grand plan" of road development.

The president said $50,000,000,000 over the years would be only a good start toward meeting requirements of a 200,000,000 population. But he didn't come right out and propose spending that amount.

In the international field, Eisenhower declared that in times of crisis we must maintain "a military dike on our defense perimeter."

And, sketching in broad terms the U.S. philosophy of government, it said it represents "the middle road between nihilistic chaos and enslaved regimentation."

U.K. To Drop Canal Role

LONDON (AP)—Britain has offered to give up her role as sole guardian of the Suez Canal as part of a new defense settlement with Egypt.

Coventry Confirms No-Defense Decision

COVENTRY, England (Reuters)—The Labor-controlled city council of this war-scarred Midlands industrial city Monday night reaffirmed its decision of last April to wash its hands of civil defense because it thinks there is no defense against the hydrogen bomb.

The council did so after sending a deputation to Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe for information on hydrogen bomb defense, and giving the matter a long second thought.

Delegates reported Monday night that they were not satisfied with Sir David's answers to their questions. The leader of the Labor group, Ald. S. Stringer, said the council had received thousands of letters, 99.75 per cent of them in favor of its action.

Listening to the debate was a Russian, I. F. Scripov, editor of the Soviet News. Earlier he had been given a civic reception by the lord mayor, Ald. John Fennel.

Seasick Radioman Wants Out of Hawaii Jaunt

Mutiny Rears Head Aboard Rickety Raft

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Signs of mutiny aboard the rickety, Hawaii-bound raft Lehi speeded ashore by dots and dashes late Monday when Don Smith, the craft's seasick radioman, signaled, "I don't think they want to let me off this raft."

Smith, who for the last day had complained he wanted to be put ashore, sent his message to Dr. Arthur Fearon, San Francisco psychologist and secretary-treasurer of the expedition, while the doctor was attempting to charter a boat in Monterey, Calif., 60 miles south of here.

The raft left San Francisco Friday with five persons aboard determined to drift the 2,200 miles to Hawaii eating and drinking only what they could take from the sea.

"I am not dying but I want off this raft, and if you don't come get me I won't be responsible," Smith signaled the shore from the tossing Lehi as it swept southward along the California coast in the strong current.

Smith said if Fearon's party did not remove him from the raft he "would have to call the coast guard."

Meanwhile, Coast Guard Ensign Arthur Soldeng in Monterey was demanding that Fearon confirm whether the communications were legitimate or just publicity stunts." He said the coast guard's patrol boats were on standby status and should be sent only if an emergency existed.

Fearon radioed Smith that a boat "should be out there by 8 a.m." after expressing regret that he wanted to leave the expedition.

"I'm sorry you feel that way, Don. We'll try and get there. Wish you would give message to Baker," Fearon signaled. (La Vere Baker is the raft's skipper.)

Spectators along the shore asked Fearon to ask the crew of the Lehi whether there was any danger that the craft would drift ashore.

"No, no, we will not," Smith said, "but if I don't get taken off soon I will have to . . ." the rest of the sentence was garbled.

"I must sign off now. Will do okay if boat is here in the morning," Smith added.

"In reply to newsmen's queries, Smith said the party had had little to eat and drink —"No food since that salmon we caught outside the Gate."

He said they had just caught a shark, which they were going to eat.

Navy fliers from Oakland naval air station reported the 32-foot raft was 35 miles southwest of Santa Cruz, Calif., Sunday afternoon. The crew had estimated its position at 30 miles further north.

The raft was towed through the Golden Gate Friday on what its skipper billed as a scientific expedition. He and his four companions pledged themselves to survive on fish they caught from the sea, plankton, a marine organism, and water obtained from squeezing the fish and from rain squalls.

Roger Revelle, director of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, said the crewmen "have a good chance of reaching Hawaii" if they use their sail.

"If they do not, I believe it would be quite impossible," Revelle said.

He said the current will normally bring them south about to the tip of Lower California, and then make a large swing to the west.

"However, without sail, it would be pure luck if they could hit the Hawaiian Islands, which are a pretty small dot," he said.

"I wouldn't go along on such a trip under any circumstances," he said. "It is of no use whatsoever from a scientific basis. That is not the way to learn things about the ocean."

Canada's Voice Termed Decisive On Korea Troops

LONDON (CP)—The question of what to do with the Commonwealth division in Korea was raised Monday in the British press. The Times says Canada's voice may be decisive.

In an editorial hinged on the division's third anniversary, due in two weeks, the independent newspaper poses these questions:

"Is a Commonwealth division justifiable now? And if it is, is Korea the only possible place for its employment? . . . Ought it not to be brought more closely into touch with the defense arrangements on the South-east Asian mainland, now or in the early future?"

The Times gives its answer:

"Here the voice of the Canadian government is bound to carry special weight. It is one thing to send Canadian troops to serve in Korea, at the request of the United Nations, and another to agree to their employment with an international force somewhere between Hanoi and Singapore.

MORTAL BLOW

"Yet Canadian representation in the division is important; its loss might be a mortal blow."

The Commonwealth division comprises troops from Britain, Canada, Australia and New Zealand. Its strength recently was about 18,000 troops, of which about half were provided by the United Kingdom and some 6,000 by Canada.

At Ottawa, defense officials reiterated that Canada wants to withdraw its troops from Korea as soon as possible but that it will stick by its United Nations commitment there. The troops would not come home until the UN command said they were no longer needed.

Tug's Crew Saved

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two crew members of a tugboat were saved from deadly engine fumes Sunday when an alert tugboat skipper boarded their craft in heavy seas and pulled them from the engine room to safety.

Capt. Norman Huller of the tug Norrean was pushing down Stuart Channel off Salt Spring Island when he spotted the tug Valbryn II moving in an erratic manner.

Manoeuvring his tug to the other boat, he got to within five feet of the Valbryn II and jumped aboard. He then rushed to the engine room to rescue B. W. Thomson and Russel Grant, who were unconscious after inhaling carbon monoxide fumes.

Both men quickly recovered and continued their voyage after being treated by a doctor.

Senator W. A. Buchanan Dies in Lethbridge at 78

LETHBRIDGE, Alta. (CP)—Senator William Ashbury Buchanan, publisher of The Lethbridge Herald and a pioneer in co-operative news-gathering in Canada, died Sunday at the age of 78.

His death followed a long illness. He had undergone a serious operation last autumn, attended sittings of the Senate in Ottawa during the winter and fell critically ill several months ago. He died at about 4 a.m., Sunday.

SENATOR W. A. BUCHANAN

A native of Ontario who adopted this southern Alberta city as his home, he will be buried in the family plot in Mountain View Cemetery following services at 4 p.m., Wednesday.

Senator Buchanan was one of Canada's best known publishers, and reached equal prominence as a Liberal member of the Senate. He served in the Alberta legislature and the House of Commons before he was called to the Senate in 1924.

A native of Fraserville, Ont., he served his apprenticeship on newspapers in Peterborough and then moved to the Toronto Telegram and the St. Thomas Journal. In 1905 he headed west.

In 1907 he helped establish the Western Associated Press, the first co-operative news-gathering agency in Canada and the forerunner of The Canadian Press. He later acted as president of CP.

In 1903, he married Alma Maude Freeman of Burlington, Ont., who survives him with two sons, Donald, author and art critic for the National Gallery at Ottawa, and Hugh, managing editor of the Herald.

The senator's only surviving brother, Stanley, is circulation manager of the Herald.

Publishers, politicians and those in other walks of life joined in tribute to Senator Buchanan.

"Hundreds of Canadians, like myself, have suffered the loss of a dear personal friend," said Prime Minister St. Laurent.

Trade Minister C. D. Howe said Senator Buchanan "made a great contribution to the development of Western Canada."

Hon. Wishart McL. Robertson, Speaker of the Senate, said Senator Buchanan's "keen mind and sound judgment marked him for leadership in public life and the newspaper field."

Biggest Project of Kind in Area

Swim Students Keener Than Ever In Daily Colonist Free Classes

This year's crop of youngsters is showing keener interest than ever in the free learn-to-swim classes sponsored by The Daily Colonist at Elk Lake's Happyland Beach.

With some 490 "learn-to-swimmers" participating in the eight-week course, enrollment is about on a level with last year and constitutes the biggest single learn-to-swim project for children in the Greater Victoria area.

Mrs. Marjorie Naysmith, who acts as both teacher and mother to the youngsters on the beach, says the current group is showing greater interest than ever.

It is contagious and is spreading from young to old.

LAUDED COLONIST

Florence Chadwick, world-famed channel swimmer, hadn't been in town a week to train for her forthcoming attempt to swim from Victoria to Port Angeles before congratulating the Colonist for its annual learn-to-swim project.

Miss Chadwick will give young Colonist swimming tyros a special treat by visiting Happyland Beach Thursday. She is scheduled to reach Elk Lake about 9.20 a.m. when the class for nine-year-old boys is in the water.

Advantages of learning to swim, according to Miss Chadwick, are threefold: it promotes safety, it is healthful, and it is fine recreation.

Showing leadership with its learn-to-swim program is the Greater Victoria School board, which provides swimming lessons as part of elementary school instruction. Some 1,340 students from 24 local schools received instruction in the Grade 5 learn-to-swim program in 1953. Most Grade 5 students attend swimming classes even though they aren't compulsory.

The Victoria YMCA, which has developed some of Canada's top swimmers, gave some 1,050 children their first lessons in swimming in 1953. The "Y" is currently conducting classes for 100 children from Saanich, Sidney and Keating.

SWIMMING CLUB

The Victoria Amateur Swimming Club, also well-known for its accomplishments, has some 300 junior members. Each year the club gives learn-to-swim instruction to some 100 youngsters ranging in age from seven to 15.

A Red Cross swim instructor, provided by the Langford Lions Club, is currently giving instruction to 70 children in special classes at Langford Lake.

The Red Cross will provide instructors for any group of would-be swimmers, whether it is a club or just a number of families.

Classes at Brentwood and Glen Lake are receiving instruction from Red Cross men.

The B.C. Electric provides winter swim lessons for employees' children.

Groups like the Boy Scouts, the Girl Guides and church organizations often make arrangements for members to learn swimming. Greater Victoria and Oak Bay playgrounds program also makes provision for swimming instruction.

The Parent-Teacher Association at Happy Valley school has arranged for some 55 students to take swimming lessons.

Fred Ellison, of the Crystal Garden, gives individual and small group swimming instruction to many enthusiasts each year.

What You Say, How You Say It, Can Make You More Popular

A publisher in Chicago reports there is a simple technique of everyday conversation which can pay you real dividends in both social and business advancement and works like magic to give you added poise, self confidence and greater popularity. The details of this method are described in a fascinating booklet, "Adventures in Conversation," sent free on request.

According to this publisher, many people do not realize how much they could influence others simply by what they say and how they say it. Whether in business, at social functions, or even in casual conversations with new acquaintances, there are ways in which you can make a good impression every time you talk.

To acquaint more readers of this paper with the easy-to-follow rules for developing skill in everyday conversation, the publishers have printed full details of their interesting self-training method in a 24-page booklet which will be mailed free to anyone who requests it. The address is: Dept. 0000, Conversation Studies, 835 Diversey Parkway, Chicago 14, Ill. A postcard will do.—Adv.

The Case of the LINCOLN KILLER

(Text copyright, 1954, Carl G. Hodges. Distributed by King Features Syndicate.)

BY CARL G. HODGES

I went back to my seat and suspicion nagged me at once. When I had left to go to the club car, I remembered distinctly that I had put the writing case on the floor. When I returned it was on the seat. I wondered if the porter had moved it.

I lifted the writing case to my lap and opened it. The stamps and stationery were in disarray, as if someone had pawed through them. The packet of letters from Patterson to Cissy Medinah were still there but—I felt certain that my return had interrupted the search of my writing case.

Who would try to rifle my belongings? The man in the checkered coat? He'd disappeared from the club bar the moment Bruce Jamison sat down with me.

Had it been the latter's job to keep me occupied while the other returned to my seat to rifle my writing case?

The train pulled into Springfield at 7.55. I stepped down a planked runway between the tracks. There was some confusion as passengers selected baggage from the pile.

The sun, still high over the dome of the State Capitol, was an orange spotlight that seemed to centre its heat on each individual. A young fellow came up and said, "Miss Lorelei?" tentatively. His blue eyes were focused on my hair and they had doubt in them.

"I'm Penelope Ames—Penny for short," I said, "I think I'm the one you're looking for. You're on the reception committee for the Springfield Players."

He smiled. "I'm afraid there's been a mistake. I know that you were supposed to be the guest star of the Gentleman from Sangamon, but I was told that Lorelei herself had asked for the part at the last minute and as her name has such great publicity value—and as you, Miss Penelope, didn't have a contract — they decided to take her offer. I'm sorry."

I realized now that this last-minute development had been the reason for Lorelei's paging me in Chicago. "You might have let me know," I told him, angrily.

"I did," he said. "I wired Lorelei at four o'clock asking her to notify you and asking when she was coming. She wired that she would be on this train and she'd be wearing a cloud-gray—"

"Shantung," I finished for him. "Exactly like the one I'm wearing. You see, Lorelei is my sister. She isn't on this train. The last time I saw her she was trying to locate a justice of the peace so she could get married. I doubt if she shows up for a day or two." I was tired and nettled. "After all, rehearsals don't start until Wednesday."

Then he said, "My name is Terry Drennan."

My breath was soft. "Not of the same Drennan family that Michael—?"

"No. He was my father's cousin. Lorelei left him and got a Reno divorce.

My father says that's why Michael started drinking. Every time Lorelei figures in some publicity she drags the names of all her former husbands across the front pages with her. Naturally, the story of Michael's death is raked up again. That's not good for the relatives, especially my father who is president of a bank here."

I said, "You work in the bank?"

"No," he answered. "I don't have a job with Dad; I'm trying to be an architect. That's how I got into the Springfield Players. I'm not an actor. They think I can help design scenery."

Then he grinned at me and his pug nose crinkled up and I had a nice warm feeling. "Come on," he said, "I'll take you to the hotel. If Lorelei's not coming today we'll put you in her suite."

After taking me to the Abraham Lincoln Hotel and establishing me in the suite, Drennan insisted on taking me out for dinner and dancing. We went to a spot known as the Lake Club. However, the past few days had been hectic and I was terribly tired. At 11 I asked him to take me back to the hotel. When we reached my suite the door was open.

Terry and I walked into what seemed to be a repetition of that celebration in the LaSalle Hotel in Chicago only a few hours ago.

I found Lorelei in the bedroom, posing for a photographer. The blue parasol and her new husband, Brinks Underwood, were conspicious props.

When Lorelei saw me she exploded off the bed, came across the room with that sexy walk of hers and put her arms around me and gushed, "Darling!" Then she said plaintively, as if she had suffered long and terribly, "I'll forgive you, child, for taking my suite. But get your things out of here. After all, on a honeymoon three's a crowd."

I stood quietly by the dresser, but an angry emotion was stirring. "You didn't take the train, Naturally I assumed you wouldn't reach here today."

Again she managed to convey the impression that I was young and unsophisticated. "Didn't you ever hear of an airplane, child? We flew."

I picked up a compact off the dresser. It was gold and made in the shape of a ship's wheel. The cast of Ho, Navigator had been given identical ones by a Hollywood producer after the completion of Lorelei's last picture. This one was mine, I knew, because my initials, P.A., were engraved on the lid. Lorelei always appropriated anything she wanted, even if she had one like it; it was too much trouble for her to look for her own.

I opened my emerald bag and dropped the compact inside. Lorelei saw me do it and I was surprised that she didn't rant at me. "Child," she cooed, "the black powder in that would be dynamite for you."

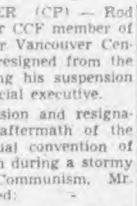
Garden Notes

Baby Potatoes Annual Treat



BY M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

In our family, one of the things we always look forward to around this time of the year is our first feed of baby new potatoes from our own garden. These little fellows, steamed or boiled and served in a cream sauce, are food fit for the gods.

We don't lift the potatoes in the usual way, using a digging fork and lifting the whole plant. We don't like to sacrifice the plant while the potatoes are so small, and leave a nasty gap in the potato row. Instead I take a trowel and burrow into the potato hills, taking out just a few from each plant until I have enough for our table. In this way, the plants continue to grow and to plump up the rest of the tubers.

TRIM TOMATOES

Those gardeners who are growing their tomatoes in the orthodox way, staked and tied and restricted to a single stem, have a lot of work on their hands these days, as the plants are putting forth a forest of side shoots from the leaf-axils, and all these must be nipped out while they are still very small. Looking the plants over once a week just doesn't seem often enough—even while your back is turned, new shoots come popping out. It's a good idea, therefore, to keep a knife or a small pair of scissors in your pocket every time you take a stroll through the vegetable patch, so that the tomatoes will be pruned there and then.

MAJOR OPERATION

If you let these side shoots become too large before taking off, their removal becomes a major surgical operation, with the consequent shock to the plant, and with considerable danger of disease spores entering the wounds. These remarks apply in equal force to the removal of the side shoots from sweet peas.

Tomatoes will need new ties to their stakes almost every week now, or the tops of the plants will be whipped around in the wind and the growing point damaged. Use a soft material for the ties, never thin twine which would cut the stems, or harsh twine which would abrade the skin or bark of the plant.

OLD RIBBONS

I like old typewriter ribbons for this job, and I have all the girls in my office saving their stock for me. Tie the length of ribbon securely to the stake first, using a double knot then loosely around the tomato stem, leaving room for the stem to swell without becoming strangled.

The non-staking or bush varieties of tomatoes need a little work on them, too. These plants send up a dense forest of shoots, and they become overcrowded with leafy growth, which cuts down the subsequent crop. I find it pays to limit each plant to about four main branches, taking out all the others. Bush tomatoes in particular should be mulched heavily with straw, not only to steady the moisture supply to the roots, but to keep the fruit up off the ground and prevent it from rotting.

Lake Yields Ancient Hull

PENETANGUISHENE, Ont. (BUP) — Archaeologists and navy frogmen have located the hull of a 19th century ship believed to have been sunk in Georgian Bay more than 130 years ago.

The find was made off Magazine Island near Penetanguishene by a team under the direction of Prof. Wilfrid Jury of the University of Western Ontario.

Last year Prof. Jury located and surfaced the Tecumseh, brought from Fort Erie to Penetanguishene in 1817. He said he believed the second was a sister ship, the Naawash.

Young Resigns From CCF Party

VANCOUVER (CP) — Rod Young, former CCF member of parliament for Vancouver Centre, Monday resigned from the party following his suspension by the provincial executive.

The suspension and resignation are an aftermath of the June 12 annual convention of the CCF when during a stormy debate on Communism, Mr. Young declared:

"I would be proud to have people tell me I'm a Communist. I can personally introduce you to 50 former Communists in the CCF." His declaration brought quick denials from party leaders.

The provincial executive suspended Mr. Young on Saturday pending an executive trial set for July 24.

Mr. Young replied that the full convention of the party already had debated the subject, and he said:

"Since this matter was disposed of in open convention, the provincial executive has no power to try me on the issue a second time. Nevertheless, the executive committee, by the use of a constitutional subterfuge, has proceeded to do so. . . .

"It is my opinion that no honest person will expect me to appear before a trial committee hand-picked by an executive which has already condemned me."

He said he quit the CCF in the interests of the party "in order that I may defeat the evil intentions of those officers who desire to precipitate a split."

Palace Squelches Speculation Third Royal Child Expected

LONDON (AP)—Buckingham Palace said Monday the Queen will hold investitures November 2, 9 and 16.

Investitures are seldom announced so far in advance.

There was speculation that the palace did so this time to dispel rumors that the Queen is expecting a third child.

The New York Daily News Sunday night quoted "Buckingham Palace sources" as saying the Queen is expecting her third baby early next year.

"Only last week two additional doctors were appointed to the palace staff," the Daily News said in a copyrighted story from London.

"On the Queen's instructions, the Buhl Room, traditional birthplace of princes and princesses of the Royal Family, was renovated recently," the dispatch continues.

"Princess Margaret was reported delighted with the news," the dispatch adds.

"The birth of another Royal child would make her fourth in the line of succession. Margaret's hope, the source said, was to fall far enough back that she may receive permission to marry Groupt Capt. Peter Townsend, a commoner."

The News says the Queen's "idea of a family is six children."

Tired Metal Caused Doom Of Jetliners

LONDON (UP)—The mysterious explosions in flight of three British Comet jetliners which killed all 99 persons aboard has been pinned by British scientists on "metal fatigue."

Aviation experts disclosed that scientists working at the government's super-secret Farnborough experimental station apparently had solved one of the biggest riddles of the jet age.

The scientists, who asked to remain anonymous, said the sleek 500-mile-per-hour luxury liners blew up because the metal of their pressurized cabins got "tired."

SECTIONS BUCKLED

They said they believed the metal sections buckled under the strain of keeping cabin pressure relatively normal while the giant planes soared through the stratosphere.

Britain marshalled the nation's top designers and air crash detectives after grounding its entire Comet fleet last April on the heels of the third mystery crash. They studied every bit of wreckage recovered and decided to sacrifice three of the planes if necessary in water tests to test pressurization.

Guests of Honor Miss Show

BY J. T. JONES

Boise, Idaho and the RCAF Reserve traded compliments and air displays Sunday, but the Canadian guests of honor didn't see the show.

An uncanny foul-up of schedules kept 5,000 Idaho citizens, including the lieutenant-governor of the state, waiting in a boiling sun or in what shade [illegible] two hours while the Dakota carrying Attorney-General Robert Bonner and Mayor Toby Jackson of New Westminster droned eastward from McChord air base in Washington.

Eventually the ceremonies were held without the visitors, and the crowd had dispersed when they arrived. The last of 600 "Flying Farmers," Idaho private pilots, were taking off as the RCAF plane landed, right on schedule.

SUMMER TRAINING

The rest of the day was spent looking around the air station, where 300 Canadian air reservists are taking summer training.

Four Victorians who will be glad to leave arid southern Idaho for home next week end are LAW Jean Murray, a telephone operator at the base; Flt.-Lieut. C. J. McKenzie, medical officer; LAC P. McKechnie, administrative section, and LAC David Rees, transport driver.

A stop at McChord gave Mr. Bonner a chance to meet 26 Victoria airwomen working in air defense there. The girls also fell eagerly on copies of that morning's Colonist which the plane delivered.

At Boise, the RCAF planes were lined up for local residents to examine, and the Canadian airmen demonstrated a "scramble." Vampire jets, Mustangs and Harvards from Vancouver are at the U.S. base.

Earlier pilots of the RCAF reserve and Idaho's Air National Guard teamed up in an aerial jet display.

The Canadians, here for two weeks of summer manoeuvres, also showed their stuff to more than 200 civilian pilots who flew to an air breakfast at Gowen Field from their homes in Idaho, Utah, Oregon, Washington and Nevada.

Insane Criminals Escape

LANGSTAFF, Ont. (CP)—Five mental patients, two of them dangerous, escaped from the Ontario hospital for the criminally insane Monday night by slugging a guard with a cribbage board and stealing a truck.

The youngest of the patients, a 16-year-old boy, was picked up by police when the truck overturned near this village about 15 miles north of Toronto. He suffered back injuries. Hospital authorities said he is in critical condition.

The other four men ran across farmlands and disappeared. Police said they ranged in age from 17 to 24. They said the two oldest "are very dangerous."

Ontario provincial police sent 15 men to the area. Hospital attendants joined in the hunt.

Flood Danger Eased

The flood danger which has kept thousands nervously alert throughout B.C. for the past 10 days was subsiding slowly last night, according to a Canadian Press survey.

Dikes were reported holding steady on the Fraser River on Monday and reports from districts along the Columbia told of unchanged levels.

At the smelter city of Trail, the Columbia remained steady as pumps were used to clear out water from flooded basements in homes and business places.

A four-inch jump was reported Sunday but Monday's reading of 40.92 feet failed to show any appreciable increase overnight.

The news was welcomed by weary flood fighters on Trail's Groutage Avenue, where water hit a five-foot level Sunday.

Residents of Riverside and Bay Avenue pumped out basements.

The Fraser showed a drop at Mission, 50 miles east of Vancouver. The reading was 19.32 feet—a drop of .28 foot in the last 24 hours.

Troubleshooters on Job

Union Plans Probe Of Bread Importing

VANCOUVER (CP) — International troubleshooters of the Bakery and Confectionery Workers Union (AFL-TLC) will launch an investigation into the five-day-old strike-lockout of seven bakeries here and at Nanaimo, B.C., a union spokesman reported Monday night.

Mel Kemmis, secretary of the union's Vancouver local, said the union will also investigate the importing of American bread into the Vancouver area.

At the same time Mayor Fred Hume, whose offer to mediate the dispute over hours of work has been accepted by both parties, announced that he hoped to meet both union and company representatives Tuesday night.

Mr. Kemmis said B.C. bakers would take no action against bringing in American bread from Bellingham and Seattle until results of the union investigation are made known.

Imports of American bread was organized by Vancouver restaurants in an effort to alevjate the bread shortage caused by the strike which cut the city's normal production of 350,000 loaves daily down to about 115,000 loaves. About 30,000 loaves of American bread are being shipped here daily.

WELLINGTON, New Zealand (Reuters) — A government-backed inquiry is to investigate immediately a "shocking degree" of immoral conduct" among New Zealand adolescents.

Prime Minister Sydney Holland announced the decision Monday after a cabinet meeting, following a police round-up last wee' of 60 youths and girls.

The Will and the Won't

IT is always of advantage in human relations to have the measure of a problem. Even though a check has occurred in United Nations circles within the last few months, there has been established a conclusive list of things which the several nations concerned will not do. This is the measure of their "won't." Few nations, and none of any consequence, will submit to being pressured or coerced. That independence which we claim for ourselves may also be the desire of other, more backward peoples who have seen its human benefits. Performance is ever weighed against the words and the promises which preceded it. The world, in short, has developed a "Show me" attitude; little will be taken on trust.

If there is disappointment at the negative nature of the European and Asian discussions so far, there is also occasion for hope and even for some encouragement. Having said their "no" the objectors may be found more amenable now to putting forward whatever degree of co-operation they really intend to offer. That would be a gain, in both eastern and western hemispheres. The veto and a flat refusal to treat at all become shopworn after a time. This is a new chance for the West to follow up.

Another Gruelling Round

WHEN it was announced last year that the Duke of Edinburgh would revisit Canada alone this summer it was also explained why. During the Royal couple's formal tour of Canada before the Queen succeeded to the Throne the duke saw enough of the country to make him want to see more. In particular he wished to see some of the Dominion's gigantic engineering projects like Kitimat and Coppermine; to meet Canadians on their own ground rather than dressed up for presentation to royalty.

Accordingly the announcement of his Dominion tour stated that it was to be strictly informal, with a minimum of set pieces. But those responsible for the arrangements seem to have forgotten all about that. From the look of the itineraries drawn up for Philip to follow, the trip through Canada is not going to be anything like what he had in mind. The schedule has been described as "crowded," "tightly packed," and so on; and it certainly is. There will be far too many official inspections, far too many formal appearances and far too much of the hand-shaking that one would imagine the Duke had hoped to escape.

It is natural that officialdom would want to make sure that proper respect would be paid to the Queen's consort, but as so often happens in events of this sort the plans for welcomes here, there and everywhere have been overdone. The arrangements seem to have grown from one or two official welcomes into a long string of formal appearances, reminding one of a bridegroom who hoped for a simple, quiet ceremony, only to find that the bride's parents had arranged a "society" affair with a guest list a mile long. Even for a young man of Philip's energy and endurance the pace is likely to be exhausting. What is also unfortunate is that the large number of formal and semi-formal engagements will cut deeply into the time he had hoped to spend seeing Canada as it is.

It is a pity that the tour has not been allowed to conform to what was so obviously the Duke's wish. With good intentions no doubt, but with customary lack of understanding of the strain an overburdened itinerary imposes on any distinguished visitor, the officials have turned what was to have been an informal holiday— and goodness knows the Duke must need one after all the Queen and he have been through lately—into another royal journey. In doing so they have let the Duke down.

The Cure Is Simple

A DISQUIETING feature about WIL baseball games which league officials should do some thinking about is the prevalence of bad language used by players of various teams within the hearing of spectators. Public profanity should have no place in Royal Athletic Park. If there is continued concern over lack of patronage here may be one of the reasons; decent people are repelled and embarrassed by unrestrained swearing and obscenity.

Professional athletes are at one and the same time also professional entertainers. Spectators pay to see their special skills displayed in action, not to listen to exhibitions of bad temper expressed in words which deserve to be washed out with soap. As paid artists they have a responsibility to the fans who support them, including that of a clean tongue. There is thought due also to the example thus set among youngsters who tend to regard professional athletes as sporting heroes to be admired and copied. Some incidents this year have been anything but edifying in this respect.

The cure is quite simple, and can be applied easily if officials do what they certainly should do—impose some discipline. Players guilty of unseemly public talk should be severely dealt with; either substantially fined or suspended for periods long enough to be salutary. If they shrink from these remedial steps then there is no use league officials complaining about poor attendance. The sport they present as public entertainment should be clean, and if of themselves some players do not know how to behave during a game they should be taught, drastically if need be. Victoria has no liking for professional athletes who in public employ filthy language.

Canada Loses a Builder

JOURNALISM lost a champion and newspapermen a good friend in the death of Senator W. A. Buchanan, editor and publisher of the Lethbridge Herald, on Sunday. A dominant and well-loved figure on the board of The Canadian Press for many years, Senator Buchanan was one of the most constructive-minded men in the profession. Through his personal efforts and by the trenchant force of his pen he probably did more for Southern Alberta and the region in which he was so well known than any other man of his day and generation. An independent thinker, his subscription to politics was always individual and his own.

In the editorial and news rooms of the daily and weekly press across Canada there will be sincere regret at the loss of a fine newspaperman, one who bore the heat of the battle as calmly and as patiently as he did the petty annoyances of life. Long-headed and level-headed, Senator Buchanan was a creative builder in everything to which he put his mind. His leadership and example have done much for the West in innumerable ways. It is as the kindly, sincere and thoughtful sage, whose day was never so busy but that he had time to help others, that the host of his friends will remember him. Such men occur rarely enough in life, and they leave a high mark to shoot at.

Interpreting the News

U.K. Peiping Stand Aids U.S.

By TOM WHITNEY
Associated Press Staff Writer

PRIME Minister Churchill's announcement that Britain will refrain from pressing now for seating of Red China in the United Nations means the United States will be able this fall to repel efforts to seat Peiping.

Communist China's supporters need a two-third majority in the UN General Assembly to get them in that body. To get them in the 11-member UN Security Council a majority of at least seven is needed and that is adequate only in case no big power uses its veto.

Even if Britain had given active support this year to the admit-Peiping movement, it seems dubious whether Communist China could have got enough votes to get into the assembly this fall. The United States had announced it would if necessary use its veto—for the first time—to keep Peiping out of the council.

Churchill made clear that Britain's willingness to refrain from pushing for China's admission is not necessarily long-lived. He believes the Chinese Communist government should be in the United Nations when it has proven that is has given up aggression and is willing to live up to international agreements.

The world now pretty well knows the attitudes of Western governments toward admission of Communist China to the UN. Nobody knows, however, what the Russians really think about this question. Western observers of Communist affairs are divided among themselves over the question of whether the Russians are not perhaps the most happy party—in secret of course—to see the Chinese Communists kept out of the United Nations.

It's pointed out that in Geneva, where the Chinese Communists emerged for the first time, on the stage of a big international conference, Chou En-lai showed a tendency to run away with the Communist side of the show.

Others note that once the Chinese Reds were in the security council the Communists would always have a two-vote veto.

One thing is certain: The Chinese Communists themselves want to get into the UN.

"... of shoes—and ships—and sealing wax—of cabbages and kings"

By TOM TAYLOR

AS I watched the Colonist swimming neophytes dunk and splash to their hearts content at Elk Lake I was tempted to wish I were small fry again; tempted only, for turning back the clock is the vainest ambition of human kind.

This beach now, Happyland, could not be more aptly named; there was none like it in my native town. Not that I was unhappy in those far off days; not a bit, even though the size of my weekly pocket allowance would cause a modern five-year-old to go on strike—and without advance conciliation procedures.

Nor was swimming left entirely out of our "effective living" curriculum. There were public baths aplenty throughout our town, a la the Crystal Garden only not so swanky, and periodically our school class attended en masse. That I did not emerge from these somewhat scrappy lessons a full-blown champion would be, I suppose, my own fault.

At the time, however, I scarcely thought so.

* * *

It seemed to me then that the "stars" of our class got all the attention—this will be the wail of an incompetent, but there it is. One such I remember, born half a fish with webbed toes, who delighted in displaying his ability to swim the bath length under water. I took a dim view of this maritime manoeuvre, since I saw nothing wonderful in it at all.

As a matter of fact I was pretty good at going under myself. My trouble was to stay on top, an art I can't say I have mastered to prolonged perfection even today. I know for certain at least that I'd never swim Juan de Fuca.

Not more than a hundred feet or so anyway.

I daresay there are various ways of learning to swim. Marge Nay-smith and Archie McKinnon might not approve the Cockney style, for instance, told me over the phone the other day by a nice friendly soul. I give it you as she quoted:

"Me father taught me to swim. First time 'e ducked me; second time he showed me 'ow to do it; third time 'e said: 'You swim or I'll strap ya.' And I hoff like a bloomin' duck."

Drastic, eh, but not without a certain merit perhaps. If a young puppy can swim automatically when dunked unexpectedly, why not the young human puppy?

* * *

Some can, surprising their elders and saving a wetting for father whose heart has jumped into his mouth, but the best way to learn is to go to The Colonist swimming classes. Around 500 youngsters think so at any rate, and they are wise beyond their years.

These classes don't aim to turn out channel swimmers, of course, or develop frogmen for the Royal Canadian Navy. Just as a car driver isn't really a motorist the day he gets his first driver's license, no matter what he thinks, so the graduate of Happyland has to add the fine touches later.

What these classes do, however, is remove the fear of deep water that inhibits so many young minds and on occasion makes them landlubbers for the rest of their days. They teach too, without the false courage of rubber wings, the fundamental strokes on which to build a later proficiency.

In a sea-girt city these two verities seem priceless to me.

You know that old anonymous verse, of course:

Mother, may I go out to swim?
Yes, my darling daughter;
Hang your clothes on a hickory limb,
But don't go near the water.

Go out some day to Happyland and see how wrong it is.

I wish there had been a Colonist class in my home town when I was a little boy; maybe then I'd be able to make it as far as Trial Island.

Reports from Ottawa

DON'T discount the chances of an all-Canadian St. Lawrence seaway just because the conference with the Americans here last week on the possibility of a joint seaway seemed very friendly.

This was simply a get-together meeting so each country could find out what the other had on its mind. It didn't solve or decide anything. It merely made a list of the problems and questions which have to be solved and answered before Canada and the United States can construct a jointly-owned seaway.

If these matters are not resolved to the point of mutual acceptance, if not full satisfaction, then it's likely the Canadian government will build its own complete seaway.

Even if agreement on U.S. participation is reached, that doesn't necessarily mean the end of the all-Canadian seaway. This country is almost certain to construct some navigational works in the International Rapids section of the St. Lawrence. And depending on the outcome of negotiations with the U.S. it may undertake the complete seaway regardless of what the Americans do.

* * *

The big decision facing Washington is whether to proceed under the Wiley Act in the absence of any assurance that Canada won't duplicate the proposed American canals.

Some of the not-too-diplomatic Americans were quite shaken by the Canadian attitude. They came here with an air of "Look, we got this legislation, see, and we gotta have you're promise that you'll go ahead in your down-river section before we'll sink a hundred million bucks in canals on our side of the river."

The Canadians were quick to assure the Americans that this country certainly intends to proceed with construction of the seaway where the river is entirely within Canada—and also in the international sector if the two countries can't reach agreement on a joint project.

Moreover, our group made it clear that Canada will not regard such agreement as any promise or obligation, moral or otherwise, not to do anything it wants on the Canadian side of the river, including the construction of duplicate Canadian canals either immediately or at some future time.

* * *

The Americans are obviously eager to get into the seaway project. The Wiley Act is one of the main achievements of the Eisenhower administration, and the Republicans plainly want to do something with it before their November elections.

The Wiley Act didn't foresee the possibility that Canada might build duplicate facilities, but it did stipulate that the U.S. canals must be self-liquidating. Chances of their paying for themselves would be seriously diminished if Canada built competing canals.

The Canadian government won't promise not to. Moreover, if the U.S. goes ahead with its canals, it's confidently expected here that our seaway authority will do this as a minimum:

1. Spend $20,000,000 to $25,000,000 to build two locks on the Canadian side around the proposed Barnhart Island power dam, to keep the 14-foot canal below the dam in operation to serve industrials in the Cornwall area. These locks will be 27 feet deep, the same as the new seaway.

2. Dredge a channel for an eventual Canadian canal above the power dam location, since such dredging can be done at less cost before the dam puts this area under water.

Teachers Refuse to Strike

From The Edinburgh Scotsman

SCOTTISH teachers have voted against strike action as a means of settling grievances in their profession. Out of 19,129 who voted in a plebiscite conducted by the Educational Institute of Scotland, 12,328 made it clear that they would not strike "under any circumstances."

The result of the plebiscite was announced after a special general meeting of the institute in Edinburgh.

It showed that of the 19,129 who returned plebiscite forms—the full membership of the institute is 27,630—only 4,944 thought that there might come a time in their relationship with education authorities when strike action would be their only effective weapon.

The teachers were also asked if they would support strike action to secure adequate salary scales, reasonable conditions of service, to defend the prestige and status of the profession, and to defend the interests of children.

On each count the voting was more than 14,000 against strike action, compared with about 4,500 in favor of it.

The establishment of a strike fund was rejected by 14,365 votes to 4,542.

An official of the institute said that the no-strike decision was not unexpected.

"The majority within the profession feel that, however bitter we feel about the treatment meted out, we must not take it out on the children."

An expensive spelling mistake was recently made by a pilot employed by a publicity firm in Melbourne, Australia. He had been ordered to write smoke letters in the sky as a sales ad, followed by a telephone number. But a wrong loop caused him to write a "6" instead of a "9." The owner of the wrong number, whose phone kept ringing for a whole day, sued the firm and demanded a rectification.

The publicity firm had to send the pilot up to do his writing again at a cost of $680.

The Packsack

Of GREGORY CLARK

AT THE moment, we are suffering from a rash of those mawkish semi-religious popular songs in which the young ladies and gentlemen who cater to the jukebox trade invite us to raise our eyes heavenward. It is a bit of a shock to hear on the radio or TV a voice that is definitely identified in our minds with squelchy if not mushy sentiments expressed in song, with occasional if not frequent performances bordering on the indecent, suddenly advising us, in the same tones, to talk to the man upstairs, or to walk with a friend who will hear our prayers.

A parson with whom I discussed this does not share my revulsion to these songs.

"Picture," he says, "one of the places where you normally find jukeboxes: a noisy restaurant full of teen-agers, say. On comes one of these sentimental songs with a religious note. If only one or two of those kids is reached, or touched, by a fleeting instant of reflection or thoughtfulness by the song, I am satisfied. Take the people who write and compose and sing those songs; what is their normal way of life, and how often does religion enter into it? At the present time, there are some pretty large areas of the population which organized religion cannot reach at all. I welcome any sort of approach, mawkish, sentimental, false even, as some of these popular religious songs are, that will light a spark in the mind or heart of anyone."

The parson in conclusion pinned my ears back by enquiring why I listened to these songs, in the first place. Well, heck, like most people, if I want to hear a news broadcast, I turn the radio on ahead of time, to remind me. If a certain TV program is not to be missed, you've got to warm the thing up. No matter how cranky you may be, there is no way of escaping a little jukebox in the house. It is like flies. Flies are bound to get in the house.

Seven Kings

From The Times, London

THERE was a time when Sir Winston Churchill refused in no uncertain terms to preside over the liquidation of the British Empire. But when a man has spent most of 80 years laboring, often against considerable odds, to keep the scheme of things entire, he may be excused if, towards the end of his service, he indulges the fancy of what fun it would be to shatter it to bits, and then leave it to be remoulded to the heart's desire by somebody else.

Sir Winston Churchill would let the overseas Empire alone; but England—which the Scots, the Welsh, and the Irish in any event have always tended to treat as an inessential excrescence upon the structure—might as well, it seems, be put into commission. This anomalous little country, he told a luncheon party at the White House, "was once a heptarchy, and it might be a good thing if it were to become a heptarchy again."

This rosy picture of a golden age awaiting rebirth was apparently inspired by contemplation of the happy condition of the United States of America, with 49 governments and 49 systems of law, not to mention 96 senators each entrenched in an independent authority that any earldorman or jarl might have envied.

Merely to restore seven suspended monarchies is a modest request; but it has advantages for a harassed prime minister. It is six to one that any given opposition leader who is found troublesome will be found better qualified for some other witenagemot. Danegeld at a groat or so on the hide will be a distinct improvement on the present rate of centralized income tax, even though motorists may cavil at the parking charges levied by every local thegn who happens to be endowed with the right to scot and lot, toll, teen and infangenthef.

The plan offers little relief to the finances of members of parliament, who will be expected to appear annually to give counsel and military service, not only unremunerated, but armed at their own expense with the bill or battle-axe proper to their rank. On the other hand, with seven royal courts and seven birthday honors lists, the immaterial consolations of a public career will be multiplied.

Without doubt the romantic imagination of the prime minister goes back to that memorable exhibition of sea power, when King Edgar the Peaceful was rowed by six lesser kings upon the Dee. It is too late to do anything about it for this year's Henley; but Sir Winston Churchill is explicitly leaving the task for his successor in office; and if seven maids with seven mops can be set to work to tidy up the confused amalgam of English history into seven separate heaps, there is no reason why we should not thus get halfway back to Eden before the thousandth anniversary of King Edgar's coronation comes round in 1973.

Contest Winner In City

Winner of an airplane trip to Victoria in a contest held in Kelowna to benefit the Queen Alexandra Solarium "Shower of Dimes," Mrs. June Bell and her son, Bruce, were guests yesterday of Solarium officials here.

Mrs. Bell's tour of the city included a visit to the Solarium at Cobble Hill which gave her a new insight into the valuable work being done at the institution for crippled children.

'OKAN-AIR' CHOSEN

Mr. Bell suggested the winning name "Okan-Air", for a private air-training school in the Kelowna district in a contest sponsored by a Kelowna radio station, the Kelowna Courier and the Kelowna Capital News.

Contestants who sent in names also had to make donations to the Shower of Dimes of at least $1.

Staff members of the two newspapers and the radio station also auctioned off their services for the Shower of Dimes. For a donation to the Solarium, newspaper and radio men did all sorts of odd jobs, such as looking after babies and mowing lawns.

TOTAL OF $300

The contest and service auction raised a total of $300 for the Solarium.

Prize for the contest was a trip to Victoria and the Solarium aboard the private plane of Ralph Hermanson, manager of the Kelowna air training school.

Vast B.C. Market Waiting in Asia, Gunderson Says

British Columbia stands on the threshold of a 500-million-person consumer market if trade with Asia can be resumed, Einar Gunderson told Victoria Gyro Club yesterday.

The newly-named provincial trade emissary to Western Europe was speaking of a recent trip he made to Japan with Vancouver Board of Trade.

He said the country is far ahead in industrial development of other eastern nations, and has the manpower with which to manufacture goods from the vast amount of resources Canada has to offer.

NEW MARKET

The two-year rice famine in Japan has given Western Canadian grain farmers a new market, said the former B.C. finance minister.

Mr. Gunderson stated that shortage of the staple diet food had forced Japan to import grain and barley, and that the new food has caught on with the country's younger people.

The speaker pointed out that Canada's market problem almost could be solved if every one of Japan's 80,000,000 people ate a slice of bread a week.

The country's seething population created a powerful impression with every visitor, said Mr. Gunderson. The people live in an area less than half the size of B.C., of which only 15 per cent is suitable for agriculture.

Japan's economy is based solely on the import-export basis, added the speaker. "They are getting production costs down because they have to sell their products to import food," said Mr. Gunderson.

The quality of production has greatly improved, and the "Made in Japan" trademark is now not something to be regarded with suspicion, remarked Mr. Gunderson.

He stated that members of the Canadian party had advised the nation's business men that money should be spent advertising the quality of their goods, and that inferior merchandise should be kept for the Asiatic markets.

The speaker told the Gyros that Japan is eager that Canada should buy more of her products. Last year Canada took $15,000,000 worth, and exported to them foodstuffs and materials worth $128,000,000.

PURCHASE MORE

He added that the amount that would make the Japanese happy could be achieved by reducing purchases from the United States by 2 per cent and buying that amount from them.

As a result of advice given to them, the Japanese have now decided to open up agencies in Canada for direct sales in this country, which at present is buying only through U.S. dealers.

Mr. Gunderson added that a difference in thinking is obvious in the Far East.

Referring to his visit to Hong Kong, the speaker said that although bordered by Red China the community is building "and does not seem to fear war."

"You go to Manila and they are scared to death," added Mr. Gunderson. "They expect to be blown up any time."

Cars Up; Visitors Fewer

Cars arriving here during the first five months of this year are up in numbers, but the number of passengers is fewer in comparison with last year.

Customs officers at Victoria and Sidney handled 22,599 cars carrying 61,006 passengers up to June 1, as compared with 22,348 cars and 63,677 passengers for the same period last year.

This is an increase of 251 cars, but a decrease of 2,671 passengers.

AIR TRAVEL

Publicity Bureau Commissioner George I. Warren said yesterday that he thought increased air service to the B.C. and U.S. mainland accounted for the decrease in ferry passengers.

So far this year cars entering Canada through Victoria have come from every state in the United States except New Hampshire and Rhode Island.

Other cars entering Canada through Victoria have come from Alaska, Sweden, Hawaii, South America, Mexico and the West Indies.

Chip Fleet Up by One

A launching ceremony at the Victoria Machinery Depot Outer Wharf plant tomorrow evening will expand the "chip" fleet of Island Tug and Barge company to 19 vessels.

A steel scow 132 feet long and 40 feet wide will be towed to the Island Tug dock after launching for a final installation—a 15-foot wooden fence. The scow will then join 19 other vessels taking chips from the B.C. Forest Products plant here and from many Mainland ports to Port Townsend, Wash.

Jobless Three Months, Youth Back in Trouble

For more than three months after his release from Oakalla prison farm, an 18-year-old youth hunted in vain in Victoria for a job.

"I got a job as a gardener but got turned away because of my record," Vernon Minow, 2855 Graham, told Magistrate H. C. Hall in police court.

"I went to every employment office in Victoria I could, but could not get a job because of my prison record," he said.

He said it led to him taking a car without the owner's consent from Prior Street Friday night, and stealing a suitcase containing $48 worth of gum that was in the vehicle.

Minow pleaded guilty to both charges.

He crashed the car, causing $1,000 damage, and pleaded guilty to a dangerous driving charge and to driving without a license.

Asked by Magistrate Hall before the charges were read if he wished time to consult his parents, Minow replied: "My parents will have nothing to do with me."

He was remanded for sentence until Friday. Magistrate Hall asked for a probation report.

Minow, who gave himself up Saturday, which he said was his birthday, told the magistrate that he "wanted to go straight." He said four jobs had suddenly become available to him.

Crown Prosecutor Alan Biglow said that in January, 1952, Minow was convicted in Vancouver on four charges of breaking and entering and one of car theft.

On the new charges, police said the car was taken from Prior Street Friday night, and the suitcase was left at the home of a friend of the accused.

Shortly afterward the car crashed down an eight-foot embankment on Johnson Street and landed on its roof. Minow told police he was driving at 75 miles an hour when the car went out of control, shot off the road, and rolled over four times.

Edgar G. MacKay, 219 Howe, was fined $40, or five days, after he pleaded guilty to a charge of careless driving. He was told there will be a recommendation that his license be suspended.

The accused was involved in an accident June 27 at Empress and Vancouver with a nine-year-old cyclist who received minor injury.

MacKay said he looked both ways before entering the intersection, and did not see the boy until he shot in front of the car.

A $35 fine was imposed on Bryant I Crockett, 2070 Carrick, who admitted careless driving. He was also fined $25 for driving without insurance, contrary to his license restriction.

Magistrate Hall said he would recommend suspension of his license.

Police said Crockett was involved in a collision at about 2 p.m. July 1 while attempting a left-hand turn from Douglas onto Burnside. The accused said the car was a new purchase.

A naval rating, Eric Rosebery, who admitted kicking in a hotel room door, was fined $20, or five days, on a wilful damage charge.

The court was told Rosebery was one of a drinking party asked to leave a downtown hotel room, Saturday.

Rosebry, who was not registered, came back after the police had gone and kicked the door in when he found it locked. The accused said he would pay the $6.75 damage.

Two men, James A. Delarond and Frank Plaxton, were fined $50 each or one month when they admitted supplying liquor to Indians.

Louise A. Bailey, 322 Montreal, was fined $25 or five days, when she admitted driving without a license.

Many 'Strikes' Made But 'Fish' Get Away

Police report an attempted "fishing-pole-type" theft from Cruickshank Men's Wear, 1613 Discovery, Monday.

Shortly after midnight they went to the premises after a phone call from a citizen. At the scene they found the transom partly open and a car radio aerial to which was attached a piece of wire, lying in the doorway.

Behind the locked door was a pile of shirts, socks and ties, which police believe had been fished from counters.

In police court yesterday, Chris Hanley, Vancouver, and Douglas White, no address, pleaded not guilty to the attempted theft of three shirts, and were remanded until Wednesday.

They are also charged with intoxication.

Best Guess Wins Trip to Klondike

Five holders of Showboat subscription certificates will have to estimate the number of visitors who enter the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau during July this year.

The one whose guess is nearest will win an $800 trip for two aboard the sternwheeler showboat "Klondike."

The eight-day, all-expense return tour will start with a journey by CP steamer to Vancouver, switch to air to Whitehorse, and then by the river to Dawson City on the Klondike Gold Nugget Tour.

The four runners-up will receive a travel award of $50.

Certificates may be obtained from chamber of commerce members, Jayettes, Stagettes, Victoria Girls' Drill Team members, and members of the Victoria and Business and Professional Women's Club.

Not Time To Seat Red China In UN, Declares Sir Winston

LONDON (Reuters) — Prime Minister Sir Winston Churchill said Monday this is not the time to seat Communist China in the United Nations.

Reporting on his recent visit to Washington and Ottawa, the prime minister told the House of Commons the government's attitude toward admission of Red China to the UN has not changed. The Peiping regime must still prove that it is willing to forswear aggression and abide by international agreements.

Korea and Indo-China were areas for testing Communist China's good faith, and since settlements had not yet been reached on either of these, this was not the time to consider seating the Red Chinese government in the UN, he said.

Sir Winston indicated that the Red China issue was not the one which prompted his visit to Washington. He said he decided to confer with President Eisenhower mainly because he was "astounded" by American reports of the destructive force of the hydrogen bomb and the consequent immense changes required in Britain's civil defense program.

He spoke in general terms on all outstanding international issues in a 42-minute speech in advance of a one-day foreign affairs debate scheduled for Wednesday.

"I have never had a more agreeable or fruitful visit than on this occasion," he said, "and I have never had the feeling of general good will more strongly borne upon me."

PRINCIPLE ACCEPTED

Sir Winston welcomed President Eisenhower's acceptance of the principle of co-existence with the Communist world, and added he agreed fully with the president that "this doctrine does not lead to compelling any nation to submit to domination."

With time, Sir Winston said, he believes widespread acceptance of co-existence will solve current world problems and "avert the mass destruction of the human race."

Sir Winston said he and Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden were "astonished" on their way home from Washington to hear of the storm raised in the United States over reports their mission was linked with the question of China's UN seat.

Talks about:
HOW TO GET A
Friendly Loan

You know a lot of people the first time they come to Niagara Finance worry about whether or not it's the right thing to do. It's quite true that we don't make a loan every time anybody walks through our doors. Frankly, we'd be out of business if we did. But you'd be surprised at the number of people who do get loans, and chances are good that if you need money, you can get it too. We've grown to be a big organization now but the men we have in our offices spread across Canada, we like to think, are pretty well trained. They're trained to understand how to solve your money problems, in a friendly way. So if you need money, why don't you drop in? There are two good reasons why you should, you know. The first is that our rates are lower on many friendly loans . . . the second is that loans up to $1500, are life-insured, for you family's protection, at no extra cost to you. We think that these features make our loans a better deal than you get down the street. Inquire, won't you?

Bible Classes Held Along Nautical Lines

Ship-sailing is the theme around which the Evangelistic Temple Vocational Bible School is being conducted.

Forty-seven children of all denominations, ranging in age from two to 12 years, are attending the school until Friday evening, when prize-giving ceremonies will be held.

All the children (crew members) wear "gob" hats, sing songs about boats and the men who sail them, hear Bible stories about boats, and spend workshop time in making handicrafts along nautical lines.

In charge of the classes is Mrs. Esther Copeland from Vancouver. Pastor of the Temple, Rev. Robert Dean, is captain of the ship.

Other teachers are Mrs. Harry Lean, Calvon Dean and Mrs. Isabel Walmsley.

The basement of the church, used as a workshop, is decorated with fishermen's nets, pictures of ships and lighthouses.

One of the big projects has been the making of a model lighthouse. Some of the group made lifebuoys. Others are working on ship flags and plaques.

House Fire Loss Heavy

PORT ALBERNI—One of the most serious fires in Port Alberni this year gutted the home of Mr. and Mrs. Anton Jorgensen, 409 Athol Street, Saturday.

The blaze, believed to have been smouldering for hours, was noticed by a neighbor at about 10.30 p.m. Saturday.

Charles Fawcett, a former member of the fire department, turned in the alarm after ascertaining that there was no one in the blazing house. Damage was estimated at nearly $4,000.

Occupants of the house had been absent during the afternoon and evening and the fire is believed to have started from a smouldering cigarette butt.

Alberni Pacific took both first and second in the first dry evolution. Members of the winning team were Ken Fairley and A. Rasmusson.

L. Rinvold of Alberni Plywood won the one-man final, make and break event, in 44.2 seconds, barely beating out Glen Simpson of the pulp division.

Defeated Social Credit candidate W. H. Bryant of Ladysmith will remain as permanent police magistrate for North Cowichan municipality despite the recommendation of North Cowichan council that he be replaced by Col. T. V. Sandys-Wunsch.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner said yesterday Magistrate Bryant was "doing an excellent job . . . and I have no intention of interfering with him in his appointment."

The council last week charged that North Cowichan had been made the victim of the "flagrant case of political patronage." Yesterday the attorney-general gave his side of the story.

Magistrate Bryant was recommended by the North Cowichan district for appointment as their magistrate by letter to the then attorney-general on February 22, 1952, he said. Mr. Bryant resigned that position to run in the provincial election of June, 1952.

COUNCIL ASKED

Later the council wrote Attorney-General Bonner on October 22, 1952, asking that Mr. Bryant be appointed magistrate. He was reappointed by the government.

"Early this year the municipal council sought to disturb this appointment and advertised for a magistrate in the local press—an unprecedented action as this appointment is made by the lieutenant-governor-in-council—for which they were rebuked by this department," said Mr. Bonner.

During the last session, the attorney-general continued, he was advised that Magistrate Bryant was likely to resign his position for personal reasons about mid-year.

CITES INDEPENDENCE

"I was, in those circumstances, fully prepared to appoint the person recommended to me by the North Cowichan Council if that had taken place," he said.

"I wish it to be clearly recognized that Magistrate Bryant is doing an excellent job and having regard to the theory of the independence of the judiciary of this province and of Canada, I have no intention of interfering with him in his appointment," the attorney-general concluded.

Buying 131 Acres in Koksilah District

Martin Pretorious Disciples To Try Pure-Food Farm Plan

Pure-food enthusiasts are going to set up a farm, camp and guest ranch near Duncan.

Mr. and Mrs. John R. Archer of Victoria and a group of disciples of South African diet expert Martin Pretorius are buying the 131-acre Jackson property on Carvell-Jackson Road in the Koksilah district.

As Vancouver Island Organic Co-operative Foundation, they have applied for incorporation under the Societies Act. Founding members have subscribed the money to take an option on the estate.

According to plans, shares in the co-operative will be sold to persons who wish to take part, as home-owners, camp-owners, supporters or temporary guests.

Temporary directors, who will hold office until the general meeting, are Mr. and Mrs. Archer, Miss Bona McMurchie, Miss Hilda Hinder and Albert D. Lyle.

The society will operate the non-profit guest ranch along the lines of a ranch run by Martin Pretorius at Escondido, Calif. Pretorius himself visited the Koksilah property when he was in Victoria recently, and gave it his approval.

The ranch house, a 15-room wooden mansion, stands in shaggy, uncut grass under the shadow of Koksilah Mountain, surrounded by an orchard and by barns and other outbuildings.

The house and outbuildings will need extensive refitting.

Kelvin Creek flows through the property. Some campsites will be located along its banks.

A tenant farmer with experience in chemical-free organic farming will be engaged to farm the land. Residents and guests will use some of the produce, and the remainder will be marketed.

Those who live and stay on the ranch will have the advantage of farm life and none of its drawbacks, says J. R. Archer. They need not do any farm work unless they want to, and they can go away when they like without worrying about who will milk the cows.

Mr. Archer, a professional draftsman and an amateur gardener, says he was formerly a keen user of chemical sprays and fertilizer.

Then he became interested in the theories of Sir Albert Howard in Britain and J. L. Rodale in the United States. Both men felt that chemical sprays and fertilizers were unnecessary and dangerous.

Instead, they argued, crops should be fertilized by animal and vegetable matter only, composted and applied in a special way so as to reproduce as nearly as possible the conditions of the forest floor.

Properly nourished crops would never by attacked by insects or disease, they claimed.

Pretorius, South African student of nutrition, endorsed their theories and carried them a step further. He said that properly nourished people could escape most disease. And he set up his ranch in California to prove it.

Mr. Archer tried organic gardening at home. He threw out his sprays and fertilizers. In their place he used vegetable wastes from chain stores and slaughter-house residues.

"This year my garden was twice as good as it has ever been in the last 10 years," he says.

He took Pretorius' course, in which the South African claimed that danger to life and health lurked in such preparations as DDT and chlorodane, and in chemical fertilizer.

Then the Jackson property was placed on the market. Mr. Archer gathered several persons who were interested in organic farming, and mustered capital to secure an option on the place.

The hope is to provide pleasant country living and to test organic farming theories in a place remote from contamination by sprays and fertilizers on neighboring land.

Plans call for shares to be sold at $10 each. One share gives a member a vote in the co-operative. Ten shares entitle him to rent rooms or a campsite. Fifty shares entitle him to a camp site or small cottage site; 100 shares, a large cottage site; 200 shares, a building site for a permanent home.

All members, whether they have one or more shares, may buy farm produce at a discount of 10 per cent.

Those who live permanently in the colony will be either retired persons or persons who work in the area.

Parksville Blanks Longshoremen Nine

PARKSVILLE—A large crowd was treated to a rare exhibition of baseball here Sunday night when Parksville's Jackie Charlesworth pitched a no-hit, no-run game against Vancouver Longshoremen.

The game ended 9-0 for Parksville Loggers through Charlesworth's phenomenal pitching and support of fellow players.

He pitched only 10 balls in one inning, had 11 strikeouts and walked just one man.

The first game in the exhibition double-header was won by Vancouver, 11-4.

PORT ALBERNI—Rain interrupted the Port Alberni Tennis Club tournament here Sunday. Play was to be resumed Monday evening when semi-finals in the mixed doubles were scheduled.

Only championship decided Sunday was the men's singles. Bob Peskitt took the title after defeating Al Brown in a 2½-hour match. Scores in the best-of-five series were 6-4, 6-4, 7-9, 7-5.

PARKSVILLE — One of the smartest baseball games ever played here by any age group was a recent contest between the Legion-sponsored Parksville Peewee team and Nanaimo boys' team.

Local ball enthusiasts said such baseball would be seldom seen in big league games, for the teams were an absolute even match for each other.

At the end of the regulation seven innings the score was 1-1, and after playing two more innings, it was still tied.

NANAIMO — The annual international power-boat race due to finish here between 6 and 7 p.m., next Saturday, is expected to draw hundreds of tourists to Nanaimo in addition to more than 1,000 passengers who will arrive with the 200 boats taking part.

Mayor George Muir will extend the city's welcome to the visitors at the prize-giving set for Sunday at 1.30 p.m.

Mayor Muir, Dr. Larry Giovandi, Shelby Saunders and Commodore C. W. Swanson are the men responsible for this year's race coming here.

The bidding:

West	North	East	South
1 N.T.	Pass	2 N.T.	3♣!
Dbl.	All pass

Today's hand was suggested by a question from E. S. Miller of Montclair, N.J. "Should South have bid three clubs or passed?" he wants to know, and since the result is pretty much revealed by what can happen to South at three clubs it isn't hard to guess which side of the discussion Mr. Miller is on.

Of course South should pass. It is of no merit to argue that without the club lead, West might make three no-trump, whereas with a club opening it might be possible to defeat that contract. The first part of the argument may be correct, but the second part is not because once South chirps he is headed for the axe. The point count, meant to help East-West reach three no-trump if they can make it, should also warn South. He holds eight points in high cards. If his opponents hold fewer than 26 (leaving 7 for North) it is likely they will not bid for game, but they'll still be able to punish South severely, if he sticks in a bid. If his opponents bid game they are likely to hold 26 or 27 points; North can have at most 6, and even if he has that many they are not necessarily going to be of much value to South. (He had 'em, and they were useless.)

A brilliant defense slaughtered South's foolhardy bid. West opened the king of spades, South won and returned a low spade. West took the queen and shifted to the deuce of diamonds. East won with the ace and cashed the king of hearts. East led the seven of hearts. West took the queen and ace of hearts, on which East discarded a diamond. West then cashed the king of diamonds and led a third diamond. East trumped with the nine and South overruffed with the ten. By now South was a little desperate. He led the king of clubs, won by West's ace. West returned his last spade. South trumped and led a low club. East had to win this trick with the queen but his spade return insured that West would make another trump trick with the eight. South had won only four tricks and was set 900 point.

Crime Suspect Right Handy

HAMILTON, Ont. (BUP) — Police just opened their car door, when a radio message listed James Moran as an armed robbery suspect, and Moran climbed in.

He was walking beside the cruiser just as the radio blared.

"It was one of those times we didn't have to look very far," said Detective Kumes Robbins.

Big Ones Found in Inlet

Sunday proved to be one of best fishing days of season in Saanich Inlet and shown above are three ladder derby entrants who had successful trips. Standing behind their big spring salmon are, from left to right, Ed Cadillac, Jack James and Mrs. Henry Lou Poy. James' fish weighed 33 pounds, one ounce and silver-button winner is largest of derby to date. It won him top rung on sixth-week ladder and first weekly prize of $15. It was taken on Mac's Squid plug. Cadillac caught his 23-pounder on herring strip but fishing was so good that he didn't qualify for weekly prize. However, he won hidden-weight prize of $5 for some consolation. Mrs. Lou Poy, also qualified previously, didn't win a prize at all with her 21-pound, 11-ounce salmon, taken on Tom Mack spoon. All three were fishing from Goldstream end of Inlet and made their catches, in order mentioned above, off the island, in the narrows, and opposite the Stone House.

Tyees Hustle, Win 9-4; Six in Row for Drilling

HOW THEY STAND

Victoria Tyees, playing snappy, hustling baseball, made it three in a row in second-half WIL play at Royal Athletic Park last night as they trimmed Lewiston Broncs, 9-4, behind the steady pitching of Bob Drilling.

Victory kept the Victoria club atop the second-half standings percentage-wise and with most of July being spent at home, the Tyees have a good chance to stay ahead if they keep up their improved play.

TYPICAL GAME

Drilling pitched a typical game last night. He gave up 11 hits, including back-to-back doubles by Don Hunter and Bob Williams in the fifth inning and an eighth-inning home run by Eddie Bockman, but he made no trouble for himself as he handed out but one base on balls.

Broncs threatened seriously but twice. They scored three of their runs in the fifth and loaded the bags with one out in the seventh, when Drilling got out of trouble by getting Williams to ground into a fast double play.

It was the sixth straight win for the smooth-working Victoria righthander and it boosted his season's record to 11-5.

ERRORLESS FIELDING

Drilling got excellent batting support from his teammates as well as errorless fielding. The Tyees rapped 15 hits off the offerings of southpaw Jack Martin in handing him his eighth loss in 16 decisions.

Sheridan hit his in the first inning, after bases on balls to Ron Jackson and Don Pries, to highlight a five-run rally which gave Drilling all the margin he was to need. It was a tremendous poke which cleared the fence in left field, about 360 feet from the plate. Stein connected with no one aboard in the fifth.

The game produced some excellent defensive play. The ever-improving Jackson made two fine plays, racing almost behind first base to take a hit away from Hunter and handling Clint Cameron's smash neatly in the fourth in addition to starting that big double play in the seventh.

Victoria manager Don Pries also excelled in the field, snagging a foul fly off the screen alongside third base in the fifth inning and coming up with pinch-hitter Glen Tuckett's sizzler in the ninth. The Broncs reeled off three double plays, the best being started by short-stop Nick Cannuli in the second inning.

The teams meet again tonight with Hal Flinn trying for his eighth win for the Tyees, with [illegible] veteran, as his opposition.

In last night's other action, Vancouver Capilanos, first-half champs, got their first win in the second half by demolishing Wenatchee Chiefs, 12-4, at Vancouver with manager Bill Brenner pitching seven-hit ball.

Second-Half Schedule Gives Break to Tyees

Victoria Tyees came out of Saturday's WIL meeting at Yakima with a pretty fair break in the revised second-half schedule.

Under new arrangements, the Victoria club was scheduled for 63 games in the second half with 34 at home and 29 on the road. The Tyees have already played three games with one rained out at home and two washed out on the road. It appears unlikely that the rained out games can be picked up. All three were against Vancouver Capilanos, who make only one more appearance here—a Labor Day doubleheader. The Tyees are scheduled for one more Vancouver trip of four games in three playing dates and an effort may be made to pick up one game.

TICKET PLAN

Still left to play at home are 30 games and the club is now concentrating on selling balance of the season tickets for the nominal sum of $12.50, which means that the remaining games can be seen for 42 cents each.

However, the price is actually less than that. Each of the tickets has 35 games and can be used by anyone. To make the deal more attractive, it has been arranged that the 35 games can be used up in any way desired. If a ticket-holder so desires, he can bring as many friends as he desires for any game and a corresponding number of games will be punched out. Under this plan, a ticket can be used up in one game or 30.

Tickets may be purchased from the Central Ticket Bureau, 817 Fort Street, or at Royal Athletic Park. Or they may be purchased from members of the Gyro and Tyee Booster Clubs or the Fraternal Order of Eagles. In the latter instances, the organizations are permitted to keep $2.50 of the purchase price to further their own work.

NIGHTS PLANNED

Meanwhile, plans have been mapped for a series of "nights" to help boost attendance.

First two of these nights are scheduled for Thursday and Friday of this week. On Thursday it will be "British Empire Games Night" and some interesting extra entertainment has been lined up.

At 7:30, the Tyees and Victoria Shamrocks will play a game of something with each club using the equipment peculiar to its sport. And there will also be an appearance by swimmer Flo Chadwick, who will be introduced to the crowd just before the start of the game.

On Friday, it will be "Ed Farey Night." This will be a farewell for the Victoria radio announcer, who was active in the Booster Club last year. Farey is leaving in the near future for New Westminster and a new job.

Second-half schedule follows:

WHITEY FORD

ROBIN ROBERTS

Ford, Robin Roberts Start All-Star Game

BY JACK HAND

CLEVELAND (AP)—Whitey Ford, 25-year-old New York Yankee lefthander, is manager Casey Stengel's surprise pitching choice to start against Philadelphia's Robin Roberts in today's 21st All-Star baseball game at Municipal Stadium.

Seeking to break a four-game American League losing streak, Stengel drew on his own staff to face the favored National Leaguers who pack three left-handed sluggers—Cincinnati's Ted Kluszewski, Brooklyn's Duke Snider and St. Louis' Stan Musial in their starting line-up.

With a break from the weatherman who predicts a partly cloudy day with the temperature in the middle 90's, the All-Star attendance record of 69,812, set at Cleveland in 1935, might be broken.

NATIONAL FAVORED

Game time is 1.30 p.m. EDT with network radio and television coverage. In case of rain, the game will be played at 8 p.m. tonight.

Although the Americans still hold a 12-8 edge in the series, the Nationals' home-run power makes manager Walter Alston's team an 8-to-5 choice.

CAMPANELLA TO PLAY

Roy Campanella, the Brooklyn catcher who has been behind the plate for 43 consecutive all-star innings, got a go-ahead from his doctor Monday in Brooklyn. The doctor reassured Campy that a recent numbness in his fingers, following a recent operation, was only a natural reaction and he soon would be as good as ever.

Starting line-ups, with current batting averages in parantheses, follow:

Navy	17	3	15	6

Last night's scores: Jokers 2, Navy 0; Foul Bay 13, Nanaimo 10.

Next game, Thursday: Jokers at Nanaimo.

Defending champion Foul Bay moved into sole possession of first place in the senior "B" lacrosse league at Memorial Arena last night by edging Nanaimo 13-10, on the strength of a brilliant first-quarters display.

In the other game, Navy ended a 15-game losing streak by upsetting third-place Jokers 6-2, for their second victory of the season.

Foul Bay ran up a 5-0 lead in the first-quarter and made it 7-0 before the up-Island team could score. Employing a tight zone defense, Foul Bay kept the Nanaimo forwards well out and they had a few good chances.

NANAIMO RALLIES

But Nanaimo scored five goals in a row in the third quarter and brought the score to 10-9 before Foul Bay recovered and scored three straight goals.

Navy turned in a much-improved performance and outplayed Jokers most of the way, holding a 2-0 lead at half-time and a 3-1 edge going into the final quarter.

Scorers follow:

Foul Bay—Frank Gower 1, Art Green 1, Jack Milburn 1, Frank Gower 1, Norm Kowalik 1, Art Green 1, Elmer Mathews 1, Jack Reid 1, Tom Halbert 1. Total—10.

Fishing in Seventh Ladder Week Starts Off Well—Just Like Sixth

Fishing in the seventh week of the 10-week qualifying period of the Victoria-Saanich Inlet Anglers' Association annual ladder derby started off yesterday just as it ended in the sixth week. In other words, it was good.

Ten salmon, excellent for a Monday, were weighed in and these included two button winners. Taking the top rung in the seventh week was Henry Schroyen, who boated a 23½-pounder off Lenfesty Point at the Goldstream end. He was using herring strip, 400 feet of wire line and a planer.

The second button-winner was also weighed in at Goldstream. It was five ounces over the 20-pound minimum and was caught by Stan Wiseman.

Six of yesterday's 10 entries were reported at Goldstream while four were weighed in at Brentwood boathouses.

FINEST WEEK

Sunday saw the end of the best fishing of any of the qualifying weeks with more than 30 salmon entered, including several button winners.

Biggest of the week, and biggest of the derby to date, was the 33-pound, one ounce beauty hooked by Jack James. It was the second silver button fish of the derby, outstripping the 30¼-pounder weighed in by Ed Fong to top the fourth week ladder.

In all, 14 salmon of more than 20 pounds were weighed in last week, five by entrants who had qualified previously and who were fishing in the competition for weekly prizes. Only three of the five managed to win a prize and one of the prizes for one was the hidden-weight prize.

PRIZE-WINNERS

James, of course, won first prize of $15 with his giant. Second prize, and second ladder rung, went to Jack Hiscock with a 29-pound, three-ounce fish. A 23½-pounder won third rung and fifth prize of $5 for T. R. Charlton.

The other three weekly-prize winners were already qualified. Norman Camsusa won third prize of $8 with a 25-pound, one ounce salmon and Mrs. Poon Wong won fourth prize of $7 with a 23 pound, nine ounce spring.

Mrs. Henry Lou Poy, 21 pounds 11 ounces, and Walter Jamieson, 21½ pounds, had the misfortune to miss out on weekly prizes with button-winning salmon.

Official sixth-week list was released by derby officials last night. It showed the smallest salmon to qualify weighed seven pounds, 12 ounces. Five entrants tied for the 49th rung and with only 49 rungs available last week, that leaves room for only 46 this week.

Last night's score: Chinese Students 4, Cec Fletchers 2.

Next game tonight at 8.45: United Services vs. Arrow Furniture.

Chinese Students snapped a three-game losing streak in the senior "A" men's softball league last night by edging league-leading Fletchers, 4-2, in a loosely-played game at Central Park.

Victory moved the Students back into contention, leaving them two points behind Arrow Furniture and United Services, tied for second place, and four points behind Fletchers.

Arrows and Services will be out to break the deadlock tonight and also gain a share of the lead when they meet in a crucial game at Central Park at 6.45.

COME FROM BEHIND

Fielding a makeshift line-up, Students had to come from behind for their win after Fletcher's scored two runs on a pair of hits and an error in the first inning. Held scoreless until the third by Ed Foychuck, the winners plated two runs on four hits and a two-base error by first-baseman Chick Newman.

Students broke the tie with two runs in the top of the sixth inning, both runs scoring when centrefielder Joe Clarkson dropped Quinton Mar's routine fly ball.

On Sunday, United Services had little trouble with the hapless Mayo Lumber squad at Duncan, taking advantage of eight errors to trim the up-Island squad, 9-2, behind the six-hit pitching of George Kinch.

Last night's score: Indians 1, New Westminster 10.

Next game, tonight: VICTORIA at Vancouver.

Victoria Shamrocks, scheduled for three games this week, will try and restore their Inter-City Lacrosse League lead to 10 points tonight when they meet the Pilseners at Vancouver.

The Rocks are at home for the balance of this week's schedule. They meet the second-place PNE Indians here tomorrow night and host the last-place New Westminster Royals on Friday.

GAME TELEVISED

Indians boosted their grip on second place and moved within eight points of the Shamrocks last night by getting by Royals, 12-10, in a televised game played before a handful of fans at Vancouver.

Coach Red McMillan announced last night that the Rocks would be at full strength for tonight's game except for goalie Geordy Johnston and forward Norm Baker. The latter is unable to make the trip while Johnston, who will return to duty either Wednesday or Friday, will rest an injured leg incurred in last Wednesday's game against Nanaimo.

Jim Heatherington will make his third start of the season in goal with the regular defense combinations of Nip O'Hearn and Jack Thompson and Arnie Ferguson and Bob Monaghan in front of him.

Larry Booth returns to action to be reunited with linemates Whitey Severson and Archie Browning while Jack Sibbald will replace Baker on the line with Jack Bionda and Jack Northup. Alan Gill, Bill Bamford and Harry Irwin make up the third forward line and Tom Druce gets back into action as utility player.

Royals were minus goalie Bill Sampson last night and used Doug McRory, a youthful, and jittery, forward, in the nets. Despite that handicap, they made things more than interesting for the Indians, who had a bit of trouble hanging on to an early lead.

It was the first televised game of the season and Victoria watchers reported that the cameras followed the play extremely well and that lacrosse proved good TV entertainment. The game was carried by CBUT.

Little League Forms Parents' Booster Club

A Little League baseball booster club, aimed to encourage parent participation and also to take some of the load off the Junior Chamber of Commerce, which co-sponsors Little League with The Daily Colonist, has been formed.

At a recent meeting held at Little League Park, 55 parents of players who take part in the two-league organization, paid the $1 membership fee into the club. Membership can be obtained from Little League Park or by phoning Frank Moxam at 4-7995.

Little League officials hope that the parents will take over the operation of the eight teams and also act as scorers. The Junior Chamber of Commerce will endeavor to promote Little League baseball in orther districts of the city if the plan works out.

PICK ALL-STARS

Meanwhile, officials of the National and American Leagues have announced their representative teams which will meet in a sudden-death playoff Monday night for the right to advance into the Little League section playoffs at New Westminster.

Fourteen players from each league have been selected by the managers, coaches and player agents. The teams will hold several workouts before the playoff game at Little League Park.

DOMINATE TEAM

In the American League, Kinsmen, who have won 18 of 19 games this season, dominate the team with seven players. Lions, second-place finishers in the first half, have five players on the team and Oak Bay Kiwanis two. Elks failed to place a player on the team.

Gyros had five players picked to the National League team, while defending champion North Kiwanis placed four, Odd Fellows three and Rotary two.

Roy Barnes, Don Wakelyn and Rosy McLellan will handle the National League team while Gordie Moore, Ian McKeachie and Bob Chambers will handle the American League squad.

New York Yankees moved to within a half game of Cleveland Indians in the torrid American League pennant chase Sunday by downing Washington, 7-3, while the Indians were losing two games to the third-place White Sox.

The Yanks won their ninth in a row and 12th in their last 14 as rookie Bob Grim won his 10th game of the season although needing help from durable John Sain in the seventh inning when he loaded the bases with none out.

Hank Bauer hit an inside-the-park home run for the Yanks and also drove in three runs as the defending champions combed Maury McDermott and Chuck Stobbs for 12 hits.

FOUR STRAIGHT

Meanwhile, the White Sox made it four straight over Cleveland and moved to within three games of the top.

The revived Boston Red Sox moved into sixth place by lacing Philadelphia Athletics, 18-0 and 11-1. The Red Sox picked up 40 hits in the two games, Ted Williams collecting four of them to boost his average to .367. The A's lost Gus Zernial, probably for the season, when the big outfielder slipped and broke his left collarbone while attempting to field a line drive.

In the National League, there was no change, as New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers both split doubleheaders, leaving the Giants' five and a half games in front of the Brooks.

MAYS GETS 31st

The Giants pounded out a 13-7 victory in the first game as they exploded for six home runs including No. 31 by Willie Mays. The Pirates came back in the second game to score a 5-1 triumph.

Era of Gold-Plated Plumbing Lives On in Old Movie Stills

HOLLYWOOD (NANA)—The gilded era of Hollywood, when gold-plated plumbing adorned the bathrooms of movie stars and directors aported riding pants and puttees lives on in Van Heflin's personal collection of old-time movie stills. The den in his home has all the appearance of a movieland museum.

Heflin began his collection 10 years ago and today owns more than 1,600 fading photographs built around the nostalgic days of Hollywood in its infancy.

"It's developed into sort [illegible] get paid for," he explains. "Some day, though, I hope to have the world's largest collection of early Hollywood still pictures."

Skimming through his files, the fabulous regime of silent-era royalty springs to life once again. There's Rudolph Valentino showing off his manly chest for scenes in "The Sheik" just as Errol Flynn, Alan Ladd and countless other he-men of the movies do on the screen today. Valentino wears a slave bracelet in the still picture, however, and his heavily pomaded hair would break up the house in a modern movie Theatre.

There's Tom Mix looking down the barrel of his extra-long hose at the neck of his famous horse, Tony. His all-white, tailor-made suit could still make Roy Rogers green with envy.

For sheer spectacle there are scenes from the First World War air battles in "Hell's Angels;" the monstrous horror of the whipping scene in the original "Hunchback of Notre Dame;" the smoldering love match of Greta Garbo and John Gilbert in "Flesh and the Devil," and the masterful blending of comedy and pathos in scenes from the Chaplin-Coogan masterpiece, "The Kid."

CLARA BOW

Still others show the versatile Douglas Fairbanks bounding into the still-camera lens, hacking out a niche in filmdom's hall of fame with the scimitar in his hand; Clara Bow posed coyly in a semi-undraped condition for a scene in "It;" Eddie Lowe and Victor McLaglen taking roundhouse swings at each other in the original "What Price Glory;" Janet Gaynor in the poignant love scenes with Charles Farrell in "Seventh Heaven," and miscellaneous scenes from such all-time greats as "The Covered Wagon," "The Iron Horse," "Over the Hill," "Old Ironsides," "The Sea Hawk" and "Captain Blood."

Paradoxically (for the acting profession) Heflin has no stills of himself in his complex cross-filing system.

"In another 20 years I'll know whether I was good enough to become a collector's item," he says wryly.

B.C. Leads Reduction In Debt

British Columbia cut its provincial per capita debt more than any other province last year, according to the federal bureau of statistics.

B.C.'s debt went down $19.63 [illegible] age for all provinces is $228.57, up 5 per cent despite cuts in four provinces.

Alberta has displaced Newfoundland as the province with the lowest per capita debt, down $8.34 to $103.92. Prince Edward Island also cut its per-capita debt by $3.90, to $169.48, and Quebec managed a one-cent shaving to $158.27.

Ontario and Newfoundland showed increases of $30.76 and $37.75. New Brunswick has the highest debt, with $338.04 per capita.

Melon Load Arrives

Wholesalers and the weather man apparently got together in arranging a new shipment of fruit and a new shipment of weather.

Yesterday's warm sunshine coincided with the arrival in Victoria of a railway carload of watermelons. The fruit is retailing at about five cents a pound.

Wholesalers also report that raspberries, strawberries and some loganberries are on retail markets along with such other Island-grown produce as cauliflower, cabbage, green peas and celery. Green peas may be in short supply for a few days until the new crop is available locally.

Celery is retailing at about 11 cents a pound and cucumbers are about 20 cents a pound. B.C. new potatoes are six to seven cents a pound.

APRICOTS SHORT

Retailers suggest to housewives that they purchase preserving apricots as soon as they reach markets in about 10 days. The Okanagan crop is estimated at 60 per cent of last year and the 1954 prices may be slightly higher than those of last year.

Transparent apples from Yakima reached the city during the week end. The same variety from the Okanagan Valley is expected later this week, and B.C. Bing cherries by the week end.

Okanagan Valley field tomatoes and cucumbers are expected in Victoria Wednesday. Other fruits available now include California peaches and cantaloupe.

Girl Matador Faints in Ring

LISBON, Portugal (Reuters) — Tamara Louwe, lovely 26-year-old South African model turned matador, fell and fainted in the ring here Sunday while fighting her first bull in public.

She came here from Johannesburg 18 months ago to learn bullfighting.

Six thousand spectators saw her caught on the bull's horns before she fell. She was carried unconscious from the ring, but later said determinedly: "I will not give up bullfighting."

Bannister In Amazing Last Quarter

LONDON (AP)—Dr. Roger Bannister, the first four-minute miler, ran an amazing 53.8 second last quarter Saturday in retaining his British Amateur Athletic Association mile title with a workmanlike clocking of four minutes, 7.6 seconds.

This was his first serious mile effort since his 3.59.4 mile on May 6 at Oxford. He obviously was making no effort at fast time.

Permitting the field to dawdle through the first three laps in three minutes, 13.8 seconds, Bannister spurted ahead 300 yards from the tape and sprinted to a 25-yard victory over Ian Boyd. David Law was third to complete a sweep by Oxonians in this event.

Bannister's final 440 yards in 53.8 seconds was believed to be fastest quarter ever clocked in a serious one-mile race.

Slow Ruin of Relics Stopped

This beaver totem fronting a Haida house in the deserted village of Tanoo is one of six irreplaceable poles saved from decay by Provincial Museum anthropologist Wilson Duff on a recent trip to the Queen Charlottes. A century ago, 350 of the largest and finest poles ever carved stood in the 15 Haida villages in the islands. This pole and the skeleton of its house were protected from the elements by the encroaching spruce forest.

Here the Tanoo beaver pole is being cut into 12-foot segments for shipment to a permanent home in the museum's storeroom. Native fishermen Jim Wilson and Jimmy Jones impassively saw up this relic of the vanished glory of their race.

On Way to Victoria, Vancouver

Six Priceless Totems Saved from Charlottes

Six priceless totem poles, among the finest in existence, have been rescued from slow ruin in the Queen Charlotte Islands and are now being shipped to new homes in Victoria and Vancouver.

Until this month the ancient totems brooded over the crumbling remnants of two remote Haida villages deserted for 70 years. They have been saved for posterity by Wilson Duff, Provincial Museum anthropologist, and a crew of Indian fishermen, financed by private industry.

Three of the totems will form an invaluable addition to the museum's collection of 15 poles. The other three will go to the University of B.C.

The salvage project was a cooperative venture involving government industry and other interested groups, sparked by Mr. Duff's enthusiasm for native art.

The anthropologist found the totems in the ghost villages of Skedans and Tanoo when he visited the Charlottes last year. They were masterful examples of the carver's art, but they were slowly rotting away in the rainy climate of the islands. Soon, Mr. Duff knew, they would crumble into nothing.

HAD NO MONEY

Mr. Duff yearned to bring the century-old poles south for preservation and copying, but there was no money in the government's budget for such a project.

Talking up the need for saving the poles, Mr. Duff got a B.C. Totem Pole Preservation Committee organized, with representatives from the university, the federal Indian affairs branch, the museum and the general public. But there was still no money.

Then the Powell River Co., which has extensive logging interests in the Charlottes, came to the rescue with a donation to pay for the poles and ship them to Vancouver.

Mr. Duff sped back to the Charlottes to find the owners of the totems, for although they had been neglected for decades, each was still the property of the descendants of the chieftain for whom it was carved.

Straightening out the ownership of the poles after 70 years was a tricky genealogical problem. In one case the line of descent was so tangled the putative heirs agreed among themselves to have their cheque, it was only a token payment, turned over to the local hospital fund.

One of the six poles, the Weeping Pole of Tanoo, is unique in its design. Mr. Duff says. The pole features a weeping chief whose tears, streaming down the pole, are carved into tiny faces.

Another of the poles graced the entrance to the only Haida house still standing in the Charlottes. The house itself was too badly rotted to be salvaged, but Mr. Duff took pictures and made careful measurements of it so it can be duplicated.

FUNERAL HOUSE

While he was working in one of the villages Mr. Duff found himself stumbling over human skulls and bones, remains of long-dead Haidas whose bodies were deposited in a special funeral house on the edge of the village. The house has long since moldered away, and the bones have been scattered by the winds.

The owner of one of the salvaged poles has decided to use his payment cheque to give the remains of his pagan ancestors a Christian burial.

Mr. Duff refuses to set a monetary value on the new acquisitions, but he says that from the standpoint of craftsmanship and artistic style they surpass anything now in existence.

The six poles are virtually all the salvageable remnants of a once-great native art form which flourished in the Charlottes in the 18th and 19th centuries.

The Haida Indians, expert builders and seamen, were also the cultural leaders of primitive societies on the Coast. In their villages totem-carving was developed to a high art. It had its "golden age" a century ago, when the Haidas, 8,000 strong, filled 15 villages in the Charlottes.

Then came increasing contact with the white man, and the Haidas were decimated by smallpox and venereal disease. By the '80s, the Haidas numbered fewer than a thousand. They left behind their totems in their scattered villages and clustered together in Skidgate and Massett, where their descendants still live.

SLOW COMEBACK

Only [illegible] Haidas were one of the vanishing races of American Indians. About 1915 they hit their low point with a population of about 500. Now, however, they are gradually on the increase, and today there are somewhere between 900 and 1,000 Haidas in B.C.

Mr. Duff hopes late this summer to make another expedition to the Charlottes where he hopes to find more relics of the Haidas' past greatness in another ghost village on Antonio Island.

Navy Depot at Colwood To Cost Million-Plus

A major change in Royal Canadian Navy installations in this area came closer yesterday with the announcement that plans are being drawn for a $1,250,000 supply depot at Colwood.

Admiral Patrick Bayly says he has been instructed by Ottawa to draw immediate plans for the big depot which will replace the naval supply establishment at Colwood.

He said plans should be ready by the end of the year, and the depot may be operating by the beginning of 1956.

The depot will provide space for equipment now stored at the Patricia Bay airport in various parts of the Esquimalt base and even as far away as Montreal.

It will use many facilities at Colwood, including guardhouse, garage, water mains and security fence.

STOREAGE BUILDING

Main structure will be a one-storey brick storage building 600 feet long and 200 feet wide. Mr. Bayly said he is also making plans for a boathouse, other auxiliary buildings and necessary roadways and loading platforms.

He predicted cost of the structure might be less than the $1,250,000 estimated by Ottawa.

This figure was based on a $500,000 cost for four steel buildings built near Montreal on swamp ground and without any existing facilities.

Mr. Bayly said "the final cost may be much less because the foundation here is rock and firm."

TO CALL TENDERS

He also announced tenders will be called probably this month for interior renovation of the historic Marine Building, which will become new head quarters of the naval reserve division, HMCS Malahat.

The $5,000 project will take about three months, and will shift Malahat's present location, 1500 Esquimalt, with a recruiting office at 916 Government.

Delegation Sees Council

Sub-Station Storm To Bring Meeting

Saanich council will call a public meeting July 27 to study the contentious problem of rezoning Shelbourne Street property for a $1,000,000 sub-station site for the B.C. Electric.

The question of the substation and overhead transmission lines provided a stormy session at the council's regular meeting and at one time Reeve Joseph Casey threatened to use police force and a large number delegation which attended the meeting to present a 3,000-name petition to council.

The incident occurred when V. H. Clement, Arrow Road endeavored to present the petition against the wishes of Reeve Casey, who said it might lead to pre-judging of the question.

STANDS GROUND

Mr. Clement stood his ground against repeated protests by the reeve and Cr. G. S. Eden, but finally on a motion by Cr. George Austin it was agreed to give him a 15-minute hearing.

The threatened ejection incident occurred when Mr. Clement told the reeve: "We have come prepared to present a brief with a 337-name petition tonight and not at a public hearing in the future. I feel we are entitled to present it."

The statement brought applause from the audience. That is when the reeve threatened to bring in the police.

"This is not a local problem, but a municipal one," Mr. Clement said. He suggested more power lines and sub-stations will be required at widely dispersed points in the municipality.

SURVEY DEMANDED

He called for employment of independent experts to survey the whole question and a special committee to deal with the present problem. He suggested the committee have representatives from the B.C. Research Council, Town Planning Commission, independent engineers and ratepayers.

He asked that the Town Planning Commission's recommendation on putting power through residential areas underground be considered.

Mr. Clement, in a brief, asked that the reeve, being employed by the B.C. stand down from discussions and refrain from voting if he cannot be impartial from the beginning.

It was claimed that the power lines will create electrical interference will radio and television and constitute a nuisance from at least 1,000 feet away.

Fixing Of Road Agreed

Esquimalt council pleased over news that Ottawa will soon announce plans to pay for repairs to Admirals Road, decided last night to fill in a few potholes.

Approval went to Cr. James Bryant's plan to spend $500 in repairs on the road "across the railroad tracks" as has been done in the past.

John Graving, municipal engineer, said we will have to close the road while the work can be done.

He reported placing of storm and sanitary sewers on Greenwood Avenue is complete and laying of storm drainage on Penrose Avenue has started.

Rock from the new crusher has been stockpiled on Wollaston Street and work has started on Seaton Avenue.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele will ask Police Chief Gilbert Stanciuse for a report on efforts to trace vandals who wrecked the restroom at Bolden Park.

The reeve spoke after council approved a parks committee recommendation to board up the restroom temporarily.

Council congratulated taxpayers for what Reeve Wurtele called a "very satisfactory" payment of 1954 taxes.

Payments to June 30 totaled $286,482 or 46.25 per cent, only a little more than the percentage of payments to June 30 last year. Collections of arrears and delinquent taxes were also running ahead of 1953 figures.

Sioux Refit Starts Today

A refit and repair job on HMCS Sioux, to cost more than $500,000, begins at Victoria Machinery Depot's Bay Street plant today.

The destroyer will receive major repairs to boilers, engine and hull plating as well as the normal annual overhaul and refit.

The work is expected to provide employment to 300 men for 10 weeks, with the ship being moved to dockyard after the first few weeks.

Four Island Tug and Barge towboats moved the destroyer, now attached to the RCN's Pacific Command training fleet, under the Johnson Street Bridge yesterday morning.

The proposed 125-bed addition to Royal Jubilee Hospital moved a step closer yesterday.

Esquimalt council agreed in principle to placing of a money by-law for the municipality's $31,550 share before ratepayers in December, but only if the other municipalities do the same.

Approval was unanimous after Clr. James Bryant asked for the addition of the clause about "other municipalities."

Reeve A. C. Wurtele stressed that decision to hold a plebiscite does not necessarily mean council supports the addition.

Action on another intermunicipal matter, amalgamation of Greater Victoria police and fire departments, was delayed until Esquimalt is approached by Victoria.

Clr. G. K. Sammon said, "Victoria delayed it, too, so let's just say it's buried."

Travelers cheques saved a visitor from Battleford, Sask., a $100 loss during the week end, and reduced a purse thief's haul to only $3.

A bedroom window opened about nine inches at 1312 Stanley all-wool the thief to reach a purse on a bed.

He took about $3 in cash and threw the purse and $100 in travelers cheques into a nearby garden.

[illegible] Mather, 1077 Princess, told police a police [illegible] $70 was stolen from a bureau during the night. The empty purse was found on the back verandah.

Officials To Discuss Statue

Plans for bringing the Dublin statue of Queen Victoria to Victoria will be discussed at a meeting of civic and Woodward Stores' officials planned for later this week.

W. C. Woodward, former lieutenant-governor of B.C. and president of Woodward Stores Ltd., recently offered to have the statue brought here at no cost to the city.

City council accepted the gift last week and named Ald. Frank Mulliner, Ald. Millard Mooney and Ald. William Dilfold to confer with Woodward officials.

Alderman Mulliner said yesterday a meeting would be held probably before the end of the week with J. Courtney Haddock, Woodward manager here.

The alderman said suggested sites for the statue include the Douglas Street entrance to Beacon Hill Park, Empress Hotel grounds opposite Thunderbird Park, and on Pandora Green.

Colonist reports that a major towing job is in prospect for Island Tug and Barge Company gained interest yesterday when the company announced the Island Sovereign is leaving today for the Panama Canal.

However, company officials declined to elaborate.

The company's tug Sudbury, largest deepsea tug on the B.C. Coast, has been at the canal for some time, and it is presumed she will be joined by the Sovereign.

The reports indicate a double tow is involved, including a British vessel which will be converted into an oil barge.

Victoria Bahais Friday commemorated the anniversary of the martyrdom of the Bab, prophet-herald of the Bahai World Faith, at a special service at the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. McGee, 1837 Gonzales Avenue.

The Bab was put to death before a firing squad in the city of Tabriz, Persia, on July 9, 1850, for publicly proclaiming himself as a prophet of God. He announced the coming of "one greater than himself."

Some 20,000 of his followers were martyred in Persia.

School kids and vacationers will hit the beaches again today as the mercury soars an expected eight degrees over yesterday's 66.

The welcome warmth will continue "for at least one more day," weather officials said last night.

Light southwesterly winds, sometimes reaching 15 miles an hour, are expected this afternoon.

Fall Victim Still Weak

Jubilee Hospital authorities reported early today that Mrs. Jean Bardsley 78 was "still in good condition" after falling from a bus at Richmond and Oak Bay last Wednesday. Mrs. Bardsley struck her head on the sidewalk while alighting.

Pedro Returns, Hunt Called Off

City police have called off the search for Pedro, the straw man of the Mexican Gift Shop, 703 Yates Street.

He came home yesterday.

Pedro vanished early Saturday after five youths were seen to pick him up, then leave him on a Bank of Montreal window sill when a taxi driver told them to "stop the kidnapping."

Ralph Holt and Albert Ferriday, co-owners of the shop, were hard at work yesterday morning when a Chinese man entered, with Pedro in tow.

It seems the Chinese man is a janitor at the Bank of Montreal next door. On Saturday he saw Pedro having a siesta on the window sill and took him inside, intending to burn him in the furnace.

Yesterday, the first employee reaching the bank—a messenger—was checking around when he ran into Pedro.

After he recovered from the shock of finding a strange man in the bank, he remembered the Colonist story and told the janitor to take Pedro home.

Mr. Holt and Mr. Ferriday say they'll look after Pedro better from now on.

Way Now Clear For Demolition

The way is now clear for demolition of the building at 740-42 Johnson Street which earlier this year was home to 37 pensioners who lived in bachelor suites.

The building was condemned early this year by city fire and sanitary authorities and the pensioners were ordered out by March 31.

The aging tenants secured an extension to June 30, and 20 of them found other places to live. The others asked the city to find them homes or give a further extension.

City authorities, however, disregarded the plea and the June 30 closure order remained in effect.

All but three have now found other accommodation and the three remaining expect to leave the building early this week.

Mr. and Mrs. Sam Lane, owners of the Olde England Inn, have modified their plans for a "typical English village" at the inn—but they may still run into trouble with Esquimalt by-laws.

Original plans included 11 homes patterned after English cottages and pubs. Objections were raised because of lack of space between the homes, so the number has been cut to six.

Mr. Lane said last night the homes, which could be sold privately, would have 51 feet of frontage each.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele said by-laws require 60 feet of frontage, and council decided to ask Mr. Lane for a definite subdivision plan to show there is proper sewage, drainage and roads.

It was indicated the village might wind up with five homes.

Food, Funds Looted By Vandals

(Special to the Colonist)

NANAIMO—When a young mother returned from church Sunday morning she found her home a shambles, almost all the food in the house stolen and all her money gone.

Mrs. Grace Woodruff, mother of two infant sons, Rodney and Harold 17 and five months old respectively, and on social assistance, lost all the money she had in the world—$25 and the week's groceries, except for three cans of soup and a loaf of bread.

Mrs. Woodruff believes the break-in was perpetrated by one or all of five boys she had chased away from a vacant house Friday evening. At the time they threatened to come back. One she said appeared about 17, the other four ranged in age from nine to 13.

[illegible] Navy volunteers set a free example for Victoria's cash [illegible] yesterday when 290 [illegible] reservists came forward to give blood for the Red Cross.

On Wednesday and Thursday, Victorians can follow the navy's example by going aboard at Red Cross House, 1046 Fort.

Beauty and You

By MARION MATTHEWS

When does a pin curl result in a lovely wave fluff or tendrill and not a frowsy, frizzy afternoon is made easy in Victor Vito's newest and in [illegible] of doing your own hair. A firm believer in letting your hair do what comes naturally, this New York hairstylist creates styles to give hair full movement without disarrangement. As a result they are always casual yet never untidy. He calls many of them nobbies.

Underlying the success of any setting is the pin curl itself. In all Mr. Vito suggests four distinctively different ones each with a different use. There's the one with hair wound with each ring the same size excellent for poodle curls and waves. The second curl is wound so the inside ring is smallest suggested for any bangs you want to lie close to the head. The third curl is shaped like a figure six but not completely closed excellent for Italian cuts. The fourth is similar to the third type where the hair is wound in a figure six but here it is closed or completely turned and the end left outside and fairly straight.

There's always a tendency to put in more curls than your hair requires says Mr. Vito. When deciding which type pin curls to use consider the amount of resistance to curl your hair has and experiment until you know just how tight or loose to make the curls. Also important is the texture of your hair. Fine hair will frizz when curled too tight so be careful to give it but a minimum of curling. Coarse hair holds a curl with ease if you avoid doing it too tightly or waving it too much. Of course medium hair is most versatile and pliable it can take many different shapes. Remember the amount of hair you include in each pin curl is important as well. A looser curl generally speaking would require more hair in each curl while a tight curl would be wound with less hair.

This hairstylist who is known for his youthful styling and success in coaxing the most from the hair's natural inclinations suggests that you work quickly for the best results. Also he recommends using a hair set lotion or beer before curling. Use as few pins as possible and try not to disturb them when [illegible] for the frost.

Not every pin curl should be made flat. If you desire a little height use the number three curl but let it stand up. Never pull so that you stretch the hair or you will get a frizzy result.

What direction to set your curls? Good rule is to place curls where you want them when it is combed out, place pins in direction of your curl, too. Do the top or sides first if you like so that you won't disturb them. Then pin curl the back hair and if you must change the direction, begin back of one ear. Good rule is to choose the side where you have your part.

6 IN MEMORIAM

DALY—In loving memory of Peggy Daly, who died July 13, 1943, and Dan Daly, who died September 9, 1946.

Calm and peaceful they are sleeping,
Resting near the Rose of Sharon,
Where no storms can ever trouble,
I am sure I shall see them again.
But death came to call to meet again.
Their years have been and days of pain
Their work and fights are past
And to me a deep loss
They have found sweet rest at last.

Ever lovingly remembered. Doreen.

28C TELEVISION

TV Talk

BY ROY PARRETT

KING-TV chalked up another 'first' when it transmitted the first color program in the Pacific Northwest on Dominion Day.

The channel 5 station is the first privately-owned outlet west of the Rockies to produce a local color program.

Only five other cities have color TV.

KING-TV is now awaiting arrival of a Kodak projector, which will handle color films for television transmission.

Soon the popular Seattle outlet will be featuring a number of regular shows locally-made here in full color.

Colored slides can now be seen almost daily on the TV test set on display at the Hoe Sons Bay Company store here.

London Stock Prices

LONDON (Reuters) — The stock market opened with firmness in most sections but business tended to contract.

The general tone of the market remained cheerful.

Closing prices: Babcock & Wilcox 57s 6d, Boots Pure Drug 28s 10½d, Canadian Pacific 147¾, Central Mining 35s 6d, Courtaulds 31s 4½d, Hudson's Bay Co. 122s 3d, Imperial Chemical 73s 6d, Imperial Tobacco 53s 4½d, Metal Box 81s 6d, Mexican Eagle 17s 9d, Rand Mines 65s.

Montreal Bonds

MONTREAL (CP) — Corporation issues traded at a moderate pace while government securities showed little activity on Montreal bond markets. Few changes were noted.

On the corporate side, the Bell 3¾s of 1979 and the CPR 4s of 1969 were each ¼ higher at 101¼-101¾ and 104¾-105¼, respectively.

There were no features on the government market.

OTTAWA (CP) — Western grain growers' deliveries will reach the seven-bushel-per-acre quota by July 31, the end of the current crop year, the trade department at Ottawa said yesterday.

Admiralty Watching—Not Complacent

U.K. Shipyards Fear Germany Growth

LONDON (Reuters) — Rapidly growing German competition in the shipbuilding industry is threatening British supremacy and bring fears of a slump to the shipyards.

Members of Parliament have voiced concern in the House of Commons at falling orders and ance that large-scale unemployment, a bitter memory of pre-war poverty for shipyard workers, is not on its way back.

J. P. L. Thomas, first lord of the admiralty, after a recent tour of the shipyards, said "the admiralty is watching the situation and is not complacent."

J. W. Elliott, chairman of one of Britain's leading shipbuilding firms, complained that orders have fallen by half, with a dearth of new contracts becoming more pronounced.

But Britain today still heads the world. The latest figures available show that she is building 323 ships with a total tonnage of 2,175,760. The industry employs 200,000 workers, with an average wage of £9 a week.

By comparison, Germany has 141 ships with total tonnage of 644,361 under construction. But her labor force is growing and wages are below the British level.

The German yards, first bombed and then dismantled by the Allies have been rebuilt and thoroughly modernized. Hamburg is reported to be working at full pressure, with orders from such countries as Norway, India and Indonesia.

The German industry has received $70,000,000 in subsidies from the West German government and mutual assistance funds.

America plans to build super cargo ships in German yards, with a tonnage comparable to the Queen Elizabeth and Queen Mary, are said to be well advanced. Aristotle Onassis, the Greek shipping magnate, had the world's largest oil tanker launched from the Howaldt yard.

At the end of the war, Germany had a mere 120,000 tons of merchant shipping much of it fit only for the breakers. Today, her fleet has increased to 1,600,000 tons. At the beginning of 1954, she was building 250,000 tons of shipping for foreign customers, and she has orders which will last well into 1956.

The German boom has knocked Japan out of second place among the world's biggest shipbuilders.

Many people in the industry here blame Britain's present position on the complacency engendered by the boom she experienced after the war. Order books were choked. Costs were rising, but the profits were good and shipyard workers were able to press their claims for higher wages.

Britain had so much work on hand that foreign customers were never quoted a fixed price and were left guessing about the time which would elapse before their ships were delivered.

It was then that Germany came in as a serious competitor. The first jolt for British shipbuilders came with a series of cancellations of orders. Norway alone withdrew five contracts.

Countries in a hurry for their new ships had started to turn to Germany, where fixed prices were quoted and early delivery dates guaranteed.

Sir Frederick Rebbeck, head of Harland and Wolff, one of Britain's biggest firms, was one of the first to see the danger. He told his shareholders that a German yard had offered to undercut a British contract by 10 per cent for a 10,000-ton ship and guarantee delivery in 12 months.

"On the continent, work is being done quicker, cheaper and equally well," he said.

Col. W. F. H. Holmes, 83, Dies in Veterans' Hospital

Col. W. F. H. Holmes, DSO, died Saturday in Veterans' Hospital at 83.

He was an honor graduate of the Royal Military College, Kingston. For some years he practiced privately in the Kootenay as land and mine surveyor. In 1909 he formed six battalions of the Rocky Mountain Rangers into the 102nd Regiment.

In 1915 he went overseas in command of the 48th battalion, which he organized and trained. This unit was converted to the Canadian Pioneer Corps in France, and he was given command.

He was awarded the DSO, and mentioned in dispatches three times.

Upon absorption of the Pioneer Corps into the Canadian artillery, he formed and commanded the Canadian Corps reinforcement camp at Etaples, France, until the end of the war.

After the war he went to China in charge of highway location and construction for the Cantonese government. Following that he was employed by the B.C. government until his retirement in 1943.

Colonel Holmes was a member of St. Andrew's Lodge, AF and AM, Royal Arch Masonic Lodge No. 3, Kaslo, B.C.; honorary president of the 48th Association, member of the public service branch of the legion and of the Royal Military College Club of Vancouver Island.

He is survived by his wife, Winnifred, and one sister.

Funeral services will be held in St. Mary's Church, Oak Bay, at 3 p.m. Wednesday. No flowers by request.

Captain Stays with Ship

BOMBAY, India (Reuters)—Capt. C. H. Turner, 55-year-old New Zealander, went down with the ship when his freighter ran aground and sank Sunday night near Jaffrabad on the west coast of India, according to radio signals picked up here today.

Turner was last seen as a lone figure standing at attention on the main deck of the 5,296-ton Panamanian vessel San Mardeno as she slowly keeled over and disappeared.

The 40 other members of the crew were rescued.

Bomb-Proof Canal Asked By Senator

WASHINGTON (AP) — Senator Case (R-SD) told the senate Saturday he will introduce legislation next week for construction of a new "bomb-proof" sea level canal in Panama and trans-continental highways, one running east to west and the other north to south.

Case said the proposed new canal, linking the Pacific and Atlantic, would supplement the present Panama Canal. He said one bomb could ruin locks of the existing canal and put it out of commission for two years.

The Officers and Members of Victoria Aerie No. 12, Fraternal Order of Eagles, are requested to attend the funeral of our late Brother, William McRoberts, at Bands' Mortuary on Tuesday, July 13, 1954, at 11.00 a.m.

False Teeth Often Have a Certain Odor!
Soak your plates in Polident daily to avoid "Denture Breath"
Polident is the specially designed cleanser that keeps false teeth—and breath—clean and fresh always. Follow these simple rules.
1. Never use a brush on them! Your dental plates are much softer than natural teeth. Brushing wears down fitting ridges so they get loose.
2. Never use soap or toothpaste! They can leave film which collects bacteria and food particles, a major cause of offensive "Denture Breath."
3. Use a soaking-type cleanser made for false teeth only . . . Polident! Polident is the denture cleanser recommended by more dentists than any other. No brushing, no handling of soapy plates that can slip and break. Polident gets where a brush can't reach. Best of all, Polident always leaves false teeth odor free. Get the world's largest selling denture cleanser, Polident, at your drug counter.

Grain Prices

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices were somewhat erratic on the Winnipeg grain exchange. There was weakness in early trade with some selling prompted by a favorable U.S. crop report.

Overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat included United Kingdom 275,000 bushels, Colombia 40,000, Japan 120,000, Ecuador 200,000.

Prices of class two, IWA and domestic wheat dropped ¼ cent except class two durums which were unchanged.

CHICAGO (AP) — Hot, dry weather provided the spur for active buying in 1954 crop corn and soybeans futures on the board of trade today. Gains ranged to more than nine cents in soybeans at one time.

Firmness in cash markets, favorable weather for the spread of rust in spring wheat and a U.S. government crop report last Friday which lowered estimated production from a month earlier created buying in wheat.

Wheat closed 1¾-2¼ higher.

United-Front Effort Grows Against Bus-Fare Rise Bid

Victoria probably will join Vancouver and other municipalities affected in a united effort to block the B.C. Electric Company's application for transit fare increases which, in this city and district, would amount to approximately 30 per cent.

Following Vancouver city council's unanimous vote last night in opposition to increased fares, Victoria council members, who also voted against the BCE application, supported the Mainland city in a move toward a "united front."

Two Areas Add To Opposition

Esquimalt and Saanich councils joined the array in opposition to increased BCE transit fares here last night.

Esquimalt even considered refusing to discuss the application with BCE officials. Eventually it agreed to a meeting, but opposed both the proposed fare increase and reduced service. Its recommendation will be sent to the Public Utilities Commission.

Saanich council indicated opposition, but passed no motion pending a meeting of its transportation committee and BCE officials. Suggested meeting date is July 28.

In Esquimalt, Clrs. G. K. Sammon, James Bryant and J. E. Carey urged council to go on record against both proposals.

Reeve A. C. Wurtele said council was not able to say if the increase was "reasonable to cover increased costs," and suggested the matter be sent to the PUC for further information.

Clr. Carey said "it's a fallacy to appear before the PUC."

Clr. Sammon said opposition "is the only way we can voice an objection on behalf of the people who elected us."

Council at first opposed a meeting with transit officials to get details of proposed reduced service, but later agreed when Clr. Sammon pointed out, "we can object to existing service while we're at it." The reeve will arrange the meeting.

Some members of Saanich council agreed when Clr. L. H. Passmore said he thought the 4.78 per cent the B.C. Electric records as over-all profit on all operations was "not so bad."

"We all know that the buses don't pack enough people to make money, but as a public utility company it has to absorb some of the losses of transportation," he asserted.

Clr. R. Fleming agreed and added that even if the company did get the fare boost, he didn't think the cost of lighting, which he claimed subsidized the bus operations, would drop.

"They have taken on all the public utilities because they appear to want them," he added.

Clr. Passmore pointed out it was no use Saanich considering taking over bus transport. "Buying transportation alone is no good," he said. "You must have the power and light that goes with it. It is no use buying the losses without the profits."

Aldermen Macmillan, Mrs. Margaret Christie, Willard Mooney and Brent Murdoch, who voted last Thursday to put council on record as being opposed to the application, said last night Victoria should join other municipalities to fight the BCE application before the Public Utilities Commission.

Mayor Claude Harrison was the fifth member of council opposing the application.

Aldermen believe he would favor the city's support of opposition to the application. But he himself could not be reached for comment.

Ald. Macmillan said he would be prepared to see the city join a united front even if it meant spending an unlimited amount of money on examination of company records.

"I consider it would be far more valuable than anything we could do ourselves," he said.

Mrs. Christie said a united opposition effort would have most effect.

"We should take our place in a united stand against the company application," said Ald. Mooney.

Ald. Murdoch said he was definitely opposed to any increase and said he would favor a united front.

Action to freeze B.C. Electric Company transit fares in Victoria, Vancouver and other points of operation, will be urged upon Premier W. A. C. Bennett and the Public Utilities Commission.

The CCF provincial executive called for this action during the week end, and at the same time demanded an independent analysis "of the entire B.C. Electric structure with a view to obtaining authentic information on the capital basis, efficiency and policies of the company."

Princess Charms Germans

BONN, Germany (AP) — Princess Margaret charmed the German people Monday during a precedent-breaking Royal visit that inaugurated a new era of German-British relations.

The petite sister of Queen Elizabeth paid the first official call by a member of the Royal Family on a German head of state since 1912.

An estimated 15,000 Germans turned out to cheer the 23-year-old princess as she drove through the streets of the small West German capital.

"Schau, wie schoen," (look, how beautiful) the German crowds exclaimed when they saw the princess.

Studio Ban Upheld

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — A superior court judge Monday upheld an agreement among motion picture studios not to hire persons who refused to testify about Communist activities before congressional committees.

Judge Ellsworth Meyer turned down a $51,000,000 suit brought by 23 actors, actresses and writers on grounds their civil rights were violated when the studios declined to hire them.

The plaintiffs included actresses Gale Sondergaard and Anne Revere, actor Howard Da Silva and writers Paul Jarrico, Michael Wilson and Waldo Salt.

Workers Suggest Terms

Saanich municipal employees last night offered to settle their wage dispute with the municipality for a 3-per-cent increase, with a four-cent-an-hour minimum raise, with the provision that there be a reclassification of office employees.

Council neither accepted nor rejected the proposal, but named Reeve Joseph Casey, Clr. George Austin and Clr. S. W. Brock to meet the employees.

Few Vote On Issue

Dining Rooms, Clubs, Cabarets Passed in Quiet Plebiscite

Oak Bay voters have approved the licensing of dining rooms, clubs and cabarets, and cocktail bars; but have rejected beer parlors.

Approximately 37 per cent of 8,593 registered voters cast ballots yesterday. The unofficial returns from the 32 polls are as follows:

Beer parlors, 737 yes, 2,355 no, 129 rejects, a 23.5 per cent vote in favor;

Dining room licenses, 1909 yes, 1,166 no, 124 rejects, a 62 per cent vote in favor;

Dining lounges (cabarets and clubs), 1,725 yes, 1,313 no, 181 rejects, a 56.7 per cent vote in favor;

Cocktail bars, 1,737 yes, 1,289 no, 160 rejects, a 57.4 per cent vote in favor.

All issues required a 55 per cent majority to pass.

Applications for dining room licenses are expected from the Oak Bay Beach Hotel and the Old Charming Inn. The Tango Room may qualify for a cabaret license.

NO CAMPAIGN

There was no "wet" versus "dry" campaign.

Voting was extremely light until noon, by which time only about 500 persons had voted.

Returning officer C. Rice-Jones received many reports of persons not registered for the vote.

A "dead" man came to life for the vote, he reported. The man found his name wasn't on the list. A check with the registrar found that the man's name had been removed on notification from the vital statistics department that he had died at Vancouver in March.

After a thorough check and a delay the "dead" man received a ballot.

VOTE REMOTE

Possibility of a plebiscite on four types of liquor outlets in Esquimalt grew more remote last night when the municipal council failed to discuss the matter.

The council has only one more meeting scheduled before the liquor board starts considering Esquimalt applications August 4, and there are no signs of a request for a vote.

No Change on Geneva

Dulles En Route To Paris Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles left by plane for Paris Monday night in a surprise move which he said demonstrates "the deep concern" he feels over developments in Indo-China and Europe.

Dulles expressed hope that conferences scheduled with French Premier Mendes-France and British Foreign Secretary Eden today would assure "coordinated action" by the three governments.

The U.S. secretary emphasized that his flying visit to Paris in no way means he has changed his previous decision to stay away from the Geneva Far East peace conference, where Indo-China truce talks are nearing a showdown stage.

"The United States itself is not a belligerent in Indo-China," he said. "It is not clear that the interests which we hold in common with France and Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia will necessarily be best served by identical action in all respects.

"Therefore, my trip to Paris is without prejudice to the position previously expressed that neither I nor Undersecretary Walter Bedell Smith have at the present time any plans for going to Geneva where the United States is presently maintaining contacts with development through ambassador to Czechoslovakia Alexis Johnson and his associates."

Comox Lancaster Crashes, Burns

An RCAF Comox-based Lancaster bomber crashed and burned near Cedar Rapids, Iowa, attempting a landing at municipal airport on Monday.

The crew of four escaped serious injury.

The pilot, Flt. Lieut. Jack Brindle suffered head and face lacerations. His three crew members were less painfully hurt.

Fire which broke out in one of the four engines of the big craft was quenched. The plane was otherwise extensively damaged.

The plane was at Cedar Rapids for installation and testing of new radar equipment.

U.K. To Drop Canal Role

LONDON (AP)—Britain has offered to give up her role as sole guardian of the Suez Canal as part of a new defense settlement with Egypt.

Seasick Radioman Wants Out of Hawaii Jaunt

Mutiny Rears Head Aboard Rickety Raft

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Signs of mutiny aboard the rickety, Hawaii-bound raft Lehi speeded ashore by dots and dashes late Monday when Don Smith, the craft's seasick radioman, signaled, "I don't think they want to let me off this raft."

Smith, who for the last day had complained he wanted to be put ashore, sent his message to Dr. Arthur Fearon, San Francisco psychologist and secretary-treasurer of the expedition, while the doctor was attempting to charter a boat in Monterey, Calif., 60 miles south of here.

The raft left San Francisco Friday with five persons aboard determined to drift the 2,200 miles to Hawaii eating and drinking only what they could take from the sea.

"I am not dying but I want off this raft, and if you don't come get me I won't be responsible," Smith signaled the shore from the tossing Lehi as it swept southward along the California coast in the strong current.

Smith said if Fearon's party did not remove him from the raft he "would have to call the coast guard."

Meanwhile, Coast Guard Ensign Arthur Soldeng in Monterey was demanding that Fearon confirm whether the communications were legitimate or just publicity stunts." He said the coast guard's patrol boats were on standby status and should be sent only if an emergency existed.

Fearon radioed Smith that a boat "should be out there by 8 a.m." after expressing regret that he wanted to leave the expedition.

"I'm sorry you feel that way, Don. We'll try and get there. Wish you would give message to Baker," Fearon signaled. (La Vere Baker is the raft's skipper.)

Spectators along the shore asked Fearon to ask the crew of the Lehi whether there was any danger that the craft would drift ashore.

"No, no, we will not," Smith said, "but if I don't get taken off soon I will have to . . ." the rest of the sentence was garbled.

"I must sign off now. Will do okay if boat is here in the morning," Smith added.

"In reply to newsmen's queries, Smith said the party had had little to eat and drink —"No food since that salmon we caught outside the Gate."

He said they had just caught a shark, which they were going to eat.

Navy fliers from Oakland naval air station reported the 32-foot raft was 35 miles southwest of Santa Cruz, Calif., Sunday afternoon. The crew had estimated its position at 30 miles further north.

The raft was towed through the Golden Gate Friday on what its skipper billed as a scientific expedition. He and his four companions pledged themselves to survive on fish they caught from the sea, plankton, a marine organism, and water obtained from squeezing the fish and from rain squalls.

Roger Revelle, director of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, said the crewmen "have a good chance of reaching Hawaii" if they use their sail.

"If they do not I believe it would be quite impossible," Revelle said.

He said the current will normally bring them south about to the tip of Lower California, and then make a large swing to the west.

"However, without sail, it would be pure luck if they could hit the Hawaiian Islands, which are a pretty small dot," he said.

"I wouldn't go along on such a trip under any circumstances," he said. "It is of no use whatsoever from a scientific basis. That is not the way to learn things about the ocean."

ABOUT-FACE

Frank Snowsell, second vice-president of the CCF in B.C. and a former MLA, said here last night his executive's opposition was due partly to the BCE's "about-face" when it contends transportation revenues should be more in line with operating costs.

His executive felt this attitude opposed directly the company's previous argument when it had sought power and light rate increases, maintaining all its operations should be considered on "a unified basis."

The CCF, while opposing the BCE fare demands, called for state ownership of all public utilities.

ALL-OUT FIGHT

Vancouver's council pledged an "all-out" fight when the BCE application comes before the PUC.

Mayor Fred Hume and Ald. Donald McTaggart will investigate the possibility of organizing the "united front" of all municipalities affected by the fare-boost plan.

Atop 'Un-Climbed' Peak

Reports that an alpine party would make an assault shortly on "un-climbed" Mount Colonel Foster . . . named for Major-General W. W. Foster, noted B.C. mountaineer . . . brought the evidence pictured here that the mountain is not among this country's unscaled peaks. "In 1936 or 37," A. G. Sloclomb of the B.C. civil service, told the Colonist, "while on a topographical survey, a friend and I reached the summit. We took one another's picture. I don't want to spoil the fun for the climbers." But like Kilroy, he was there first.

No Change on Geneva

Dulles En Route To Paris Talks

WASHINGTON (AP)—State Secretary Dulles left by plane for Paris Monday night in a surprise move which he said demonstrates "the deep concern" he feels over developments in Indo-China and Europe.

Dulles expressed hope that conferences scheduled with French Premier Mendes-France and British Foreign Secretary Eden today would assure "co-ordinated action" by the three governments.

The U.S. secretary emphasized that his flying visit to Paris in no way means he has changed his previous decision to stay away from the Geneva Far East peace conference, where Indo-China truce talks are nearing a showdown stage.

Dulles said:

"The United States itself is not a belligerent in Indo-China," he said. "It is not clear that the interests which we hold in common with France and Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia will necessarily be best served by identical action in all respects.

"Therefore, my trip to Paris is without prejudice to the position previously expressed that neither I nor Undersecretary Walter Bedell Smth have at the present time any plans for going to Geneva where the United States is presently maintaining contacts with developments through ambassador to Czechoslovakia Alexis Johnson and his associates."

Studio Ban Upheld

HOLLYWOOD (UP) — A superior court judge Monday upheld an agreement among motion picture studios not to hire persons who refused to testify about Communist activities before congressional committees.

Judge Ellsworth Meyer turned down a $51,000,000 suit brought by 23 actors, actresses and writers on grounds their civil rights were violated when the studios declined to hire them.

Eighteen of the plaintiffs had refused to answer questions posed by un-American activities committee members. The rest, named by committee witnesses as Communists, refused to testify at all.

The plaintiffs included actresses Gale Sondergaard and Anne Revere, actor Howard Da Silva and writers Paul Jarrico, Michael Wilson and Waldo Salt.

Esquimalt, Saanich

Two Areas Add To Opposition

Esquimalt and Saanich councils joined the array in opposition to increased BCE transit fares here last night.

Esquimalt even considered refusing to discuss the application with BCE officials. Eventually it agreed to a meeting, but opposed both the proposed fare increase and reduced service. Its recommendation will be sent to the Public Utilities Commission.

Saanich council indicated opposition, but passed no motion pending a meeting of its transportation committee and BCE officials. Suggested meeting date is July 28.

In Esquimalt, Clrs. G. K. Sammon, James Bryant and J. E. Carey urged council to go on record against both proposals.

NOT ABLE TO SAY

Reeve A. C. Wurtele said council was not able to say if the increase was "reasonable to cover increased costs," and suggested the matter be sent to the PUC for further information.

Clr. Carey said "it's a fallacy to appear before the PUC."

Clr. Sammon said opposition "is the only way we can voice an objection on behalf of the people who elected us."

Council at first opposed a meeting with transit officials to get details of proposed reduced service, but later agreed when Clr. Sammon pointed out, "we can object to existing service while we're at it." The reeve will arrange the meeting.

Some members of Saanich council agreed when Clr. L. H. Passmore said he thought the 4.78 per cent the B.C. Electric records as over-all profit on all operations was "not so bad."

"We all know that the buses don't pack enough people to make money, but as a public utility company it has to absorb some of the losses of transportation," he asserted.

He predicted that as soon as the new fares go in force people will flock to the used-car lots to buy cars and the bus lines will suffer consequently.

Clr. R. Fleming agreed and added that even if the company did get the fare boost, he didn't think the cost of lighting, which he claimed subsidized the bus operations, would drop.

"They have taken on all the public utilities because they appear to want them," he added.

Clr. Passmore pointed out it was no use Saanich considering taking over bus transport. "Buying transportation alone is no good," he said. "You must have the power and light that goes with it. It is no use buying the losses without the profits."

Comox Lancaster Crashes, Burns

An RCAF Comox-based Lancaster bomber crashed and burned near Cedar Rapids, Iowa, attempting a landing at municipal airport on Monday.

The crew of four escaped serious injury.

The pilot, Flt. Lieut. Jack Brindle suffered head and face lacerations. His three crew members were less painfully hurt.

Fire which broke out in one of the four engines of the big craft was quenched. The plane was otherwise extensively damaged.

The plane was at Cedar Rapids for installation and testing of new radar equipment.

Mayor Says Crofton To Get Pulp Mill

DUNCAN — The proposed pulp mill in the Cowichan district will be built at Crofton, Mayor J. C. Wragg told council last night.

The mayor said he had expected the announcement to be made public yesterday. He also stated the new power line from the Mainland to Vancouver Island would be between Crofton and Maple Bay so it could best serve the new mill.

Premier W. A. C. Bennett, at a public meeting here recently announced that a pulp mill would be built in the district but said he did not know the exact location.

Workers Suggest Terms

Saanich municipal employees last night offered to settle their wage dispute with the municipality for a 3-per-cent increase, with a four-cent-an-hour minimum raise, with the provision that there be a reclassification of office employees.

Council neither accepted nor rejected the proposal, but named Reeve Joseph Casey, Clr. George Austin and Clr. S. W. Brock to meet the employees to discuss the plan.

Billions on Highways Urged by Eisenhower

BOLTON LANDING, N.Y. (AP)—President Eisenhower Monday night proposed that the United States spend billions more on highway construction to meet defense needs of atomic war and of a possible population of 200,000,000 by 1970.

Vice-President Nixon outlined Eisenhower's plan in a prepared address, using the president's notes. Eisenhower canceled a personal appearance at the annual conference of governors because of the death of a sister-in-law, Mrs. Milton Eisenhower.

Through Nixon, the president called for a federal-state alliance in a "grand plan" of road development.

The president said $50,000,000,000 over the years would be only a good start toward meeting requirements of a 200,000,000 population. But he didn't come right out and propose spending that amount.

In the international field, Eisenhower declared that in times of crisis we must maintain "a military dike on our defense perimeter."

And, sketching in broad terms the U.S. philosophy of government, it said it represents "the middle road between nihilistic chaos and enslaved regimentation."

U.K. To Drop Canal Role

LONDON (AP)—Britain has offered to give up her role as sole guardian of the Suez Canal as part of a new defense settlement with Egypt.

Coventry Confirms No-Defense Decision

COVENTRY, England (Reuters)—The Labor-controlled city council of this war-scarred Midlands industrial city Monday night reaffirmed its decision of last April to wash its hands of civil defense because it thinks there is no defense against the hydrogen bomb.

The council did so after sending a deputation to Home Secretary Sir David Maxwell Fyfe for information on hydrogen bomb defense, and giving the matter a long second thought.

Delegates reported Monday night that they were not satisfied with Sir David's answers to their questions. The leader of the Labor group, Ald. S. Stringer, said the council had received thousands of letters, 99.75 per cent of them in favor of its action.

Listening to the debate was a Russian, I. F. Scripov, editor of the Soviet News. Earlier he had been given a civic reception by the lord mayor, Ald. John Fennel.

Seasick Radioman Wants Out of Hawaii Jaunt

Mutiny Rears Head Aboard Rickety Raft

SAN FRANCISCO (UP) — Signs of mutiny aboard the rickety, Hawaii-bound raft Lehi speeded ashore by dots and dashes late Monday when Don Smith, the craft's seasick radioman, signaled, "I don't think they want to let me off this raft."

Smith, who for the last day had complained he wanted to be put ashore, sent his message to Dr. Arthur Fearon, San Francisco psychologist and secretary-treasurer of the expedition, while the doctor was attempting to charter a boat in Monterey, Calif., 60 miles south of here.

The raft left San Francisco Friday with five persons aboard determined to drift the 2,200 miles to Hawaii eating and drinking only what they could take from the sea.

"I am not dying but I want off this raft, and if you don't come get me I won't be responsible," Smith signaled the shore from the tossing Lehi as it swept southward along the California coast in the strong current.

Smith said if Fearon's party did not remove him from the raft he "would have to call the coast guard."

Meanwhile, Coast Guard Ensign Arthur Soldeng in Monterey was demanding that Fearon confirm whether the communications were legitimate or just publicity stunts." He said the coast guard's patrol boats were on standby status and should be sent only if an emergency existed.

Fearon radioed Smith that a boat "should be out there by 8 a.m." after expressing regret that he wanted to leave the expedition.

"I'm sorry you feel that way, Don. We'll try and get there. Wish you would give message to Baker," Fearon signaled. (La Vere Baker is the raft's skipper.)

Spectators along the shore asked Fearon to ask the crew of the Lehi whether there was any danger that the craft would drift ashore.

"No, no, we will not," Smith said, "but if I don't get taken off soon I will have to . . ." the rest of the sentence was garbled.

"I must sign off now. Will do okay if boat is here in the morning," Smith added.

Navy fliers from Oakland naval air station reported the 32-foot raft was 35 miles southwest of Santa Cruz, Calif., Sunday afternoon. The crew had estimated its position at 30 miles further north.

The raft was towed through the Golden Gate Friday on what its skipper billed as a scientific expedition. He and his four companions pledged themselves to survive on fish they caught from the sea, plankton, a marine organism, and water obtained from squeezing the fish and from rain squalls.

Roger Revelle, director of the Scripps Institute of Oceanography, said the crewmen "have a good chance of reaching Hawaii" if they use their sail.

"If they do not, I believe it would be quite impossible," Revelle said.

He said the current will normally bring them south about to the tip of Lower California, and then make a large swing to the west.

"However, without sail, it would be pure luck if they could hit the Hawaiian Islands, which are a pretty small dot," he said.

"I wouldn't go along on such a trip under any circumstances," he said. "It is of no use whatsoever from a scientific basis. That is not the way to learn things about the ocean."
